2 women visitors knifed to death

LONG VIGIL on Chouteau Island Tuesday as officials waited in case the bodies of two murdered women could be recovered. The three men stand near the spot where the murders are believed to have taken place. A puddle of blood may be seen at the bottom center of the photo. From the left are Madison County Sheriff's Deputy Jerry McGhee and Madison County Deputy Coroners Steve Howe and Bill Sternberg. (Press-Record Photo)

Two young women who were visiting friends and relatives in the Quad-City area were stabbed to death early Tuesday on Chouteau Island.

Their bodies immediately were thrown into the Mississippi River just southwest of the northern tip of the island.

Larry A. Whitford, 18, of 2906 Emzee Ave., has been charged with two counts of attempted murder.

Bond has been set at $200,000 and the charges may be revised.

Two other young men who were in the auto with the girls and Whitford moments before the murder were questioned by the Madison County Sheriff's Department but have not been charged.

The victims were Mrs. Donna Rials Bartels, 21, and Miss Pam Brooks, 18.

The body of Mrs. Bartels was recovered at about noon Wednesday 100 feet offshore in 30 feet of water.

Mrs. Bartels was visiting with an uncle on Westgate Drive in Pontoon Beach and Miss Brooks had been staying with friends in the Lexington subdivision of Granite City.

Mrs. Bartels had planned to become a permanent local resident.

The tentative identification came from photos which witnesses said appeared to be the same young women who were seen getting into an auto with three young men in the 2900 block of Nameoki Road Monday night.

Another witness who said he helped drag the two bodies into the river also tentatively identified the photos.

Mrs. Bartels' relatives yesterday identified a coat and a pair of shoes found on the riverbank as belonging to her.

Another shoe also was found nearby and has not been identified.

Authorities believe the two young women had walked from the home of Miss Brooks' friends to Eddie's Lounge on Nameoki Road, and later got into the auto with three young men.

One of the men in the auto said they drove to somewhere in the area of West Chain of Rocks Road. It was later concluded he was describing the riverfront area of Chouteau Island.

He said the five of them sat in the auto, drank beer and talked. It was alleged that Whitford began to act in an unusual manner and accused one of the girls of taking $80 from a pocket.

An argument followed. Whitford pulled one girl out of the car and said he wanted to talk to her, it was asserted.

The two went behind the car and the occupants of the car heard her scream, authorities were told.

Whitford then returned to the auto and said the one girl had walked away. He added that he wanted to talk to the other girl, it was related.

He then was reported to have taken the second girl behind the car.

He returned moments later, and allegedly displayed a knife, telling the other two young men he had killed both girls and needed help to drag their bodies into the river.

The other two men told authorities they complied and that the bodies were thrown into the water.

The three then returned to Granite City in Whitford's auto and Whitford drove the car through the Granite City Car Wash in the 3600 block of Nameoki Road to remove mud on it, officials were told.

Whitford reportedly later let the other two occupants out of the car.

One young man obtained his car and drove to a brother's home in Wood River where he related the story. The brother advised him to contact authorities and be complied.

Police first heard the story from him at about 2 a.m. Tuesday and he was reported to have walked into the Granite City police station, where he related more details of the story to officers.

He was taken to the Madison County Sheriff's Department for additional questioning. Whitford was arrested later Tuesday.

The second man who was believed to have been a passenger in the auto later was located by authorities and is being questioned.

Man robs club

A man with a stocking over his face, armed with a .32 caliber automatic pistol held up the Sportsman's Club, 1001 Iowa St., Madison, and escaped with $416 at 9:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Ralph Miller, manager of the club-tavern said the man came in shortly after two customers left, and said, "Give me your money."

Miller reported he gave him $108 from the cash register, but the robber said, "I want all of it, or I'll shoot you in the head."

Miller then reached in his pocket and gave the armed robber another $208.

The man was about five feet tall with a stocky build, wearing a green turtle-neck pullover and a khaki jacket.

He fled east on Tenth Street on foot.

Filing dispute

A controversy at Pontoon Beach over attempts by a woman to file petitions as a candidate for president of the village board, and filing of petitions by additional aldermanic candidates in ward races at Madison and Venice marked the Monday afternoon closing of the filing period for the April 15 city and village elections.

One additional filing each at Madison and Venice results in a six-man race for the Third Ward aldermanic post in Madison and a three-way bid for the Fourth Ward aldermanic office at Venice.

Incumbent Alderman John Haynes of the Fifth-Ward in Madison, also is opposed.

The Pontoon Beach filing ended with a four-way race for three trustee posts on the village board and left incumbent Mayor Floyd David Mees without opposition in his bid for re-election. A woman candidate for village clerk also is unopposed.

Mrs. Lillian Singer, 38 Victoria Drive, Pontoon Beach, was denied candidacy for the post of village board president when she attempted to file her petition of candidacy after the deadline for filing had passed, village officials contend.

Crash kills Pontoon man

John H. Reed, 53, of 4016 Gaslight Walk, Apt. 2, Pontoon Beach, was injured fatally at 1:25 a.m. yesterday when his eastbound car left Highway 162 and ran into a culvert.

He was pronounced dead upon arrival at 2 a.m. yesterday. Born in Wilmington, Del., he resided in this area 13 years.

The Long Lake Volunteer Rescue Squad required 20 minutes to cut the car apart and free him.

He was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Hospital where he was pronounced dead upon arrival at 2 a.m. yesterday.

Born in Wilmington, Del., he resided in this area 13 years.

400 SIU law students by 1980

Although lack of space limits enrollment at the 16-month-old Southern Illinois University-Carbondale School of Law and a permanent school building won't be ready before 1979, the school's dean expects present development to continue.

Hiram H. Lesar says the 1975 class of 80 first-year law students will bring law school enrollment to about 230. The first law class will be graduated in 1976.

After that, faculty and student expansion will be confined until the new building is completed. "It's about all we can handle in the present facilities," Lesar said.

"The best we can do now is to get the building planned in the next year so we'll be ready to let contracts in June 1976," he said. The new law building is planned for 37,000 square feet of floor space — roughly the same as SIUC's Home Economics Building — and is budgeted at about $7.2 million.

It will contain classrooms, more courtrooms and study and office space, but Lesar said exact floor plan specifications have not been made yet. Planning money for the structure was recommended for the next fiscal year by the Illinois Board of Higher Education at its Feb. 5 meeting in Chicago.

At that meeting, the IBHE reaffirmed its position that state-supported legal education should be built around expansion at SIUC and University of Illinois law schools, and development of a Center for Legal Studies in Springfield.

The size of SIUC's present law school buildings — formerly two dormitories in a small group housing area — affords little space for more faculty offices or library space, although Lesar said the library should reach the minimum of 60,000 volumes required by the American Bar Association by September.

When the new building goes up, Lesar expects the school to reach its maximum size and enrollment quickly. Between 400 and 450 law students by 1980.

The law library collections ultimately will total about 250,000 volumes.

Visits by American Bar Association inspection teams in preparation for final accreditation by ABA are expected next month and again in September. Lesar said final accreditation — replacing provisional accreditation received one year ago — should be attained in February 1976.

Although it is still a relatively young school, the law faculty is as good as at any law school in the country, according to Lesar. "Our feeling is that the legal education you get is as good as you can get anywhere."

The law faculty presently stands at 12 full-time and three part-time professors, with five or six additional professors planned to be added for next year.

Lesar said distinguished legal scholars at other schools also will be brought in as visiting professors. Past distinguished visiting professors have included Frank Miller of Washington University in St. Louis, a recognized expert in criminal law and procedure.

F. Reed Dickerson, of Indiana University, a national authority on legislation and on products liability, will be a distinguished visiting professor during the next academic year.

Among special current projects at the law school is publication of a law review. Lesar said it should be out during the next year.

Tax assessments - Kiwanis topic

Tax assessments in Madison County amount to 965 million dollars, according to James Barton, supervisor of assessments in Madison County who spoke Monday at Charlie's Restaurant to the Evening Kiwanis Club.

Barton said tax assessments are expected to reach the billion dollar mark in the county in the near future. He said that 70 cents of each tax dollar goes to the school districts.

Barton said that many persons over 65 years of age are not familiar with the real estate tax break under the Homestead Exemption act. The senior citizens, if they apply before Jan. 31 and show proof of ownership, get a $1,500 assessment reduction.

One Kiwanian asked the assessor why in some subdivisions, where the houses are almost equal, one owner pays a higher tax than another.

Barton explained that when a house is sold, it is reassessed and as property values go up, so does the assessment.

Next Monday's program at the Kiwanis meeting will deal with the stock market, according to Michael Tondakis, public relations chairman for the club.

Tax on waterway users under study

American Waterways Operators said this week there are strong indications that the White House will push hard for early adoption by Congress of a waterway user tax.

It has become apparent in recent days that the push for a tax may be on, the AWO said. The Water Resources Council, an agency of the government, has been expediting its study of how the industry might share in the cost of operating and maintaining navigable waterways. This is perhaps due to an administration desire to have a "study" ready when a bill is proposed, the AWO added.

President Gerald Ford suggested such a tax to the 93rd Congress in late November. At that time, the President said a combination waterway user tax on the barge and towing industry, a lockage fee for pleasure craft, and an airport user tax for non-commercial aviation could yield $100 million annually to the federal treasury.

At this time, AWO President James R. Smith termed the proposal "untimely" and "ill advised."

He said, "The inflationary impact of such a proposal has been incorrectly analyzed and there is no way that a projected $100 million annual return to the federal government can be equated with the millions upon millions of dollars of economic dislocations that will occur in American agricultural and industrial regions should this bill be enacted."

The President's proposal was not formally introduced last year and has still not been introduced in this Congress.

As a tax measure, it is constitutionally required to be introduced by a member of the House of Representatives and would, in all probability, be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The Ways and Means Committee has, in the past, looked unfavorably on proposals for a waterway user tax, but this position may or may not continue during the 94th Congress.

Due to an increase in the size of the Committee, coupled with retirements and election defeats of many members, the committee, as newly constituted, has 37 members — 19 veterans of committee service and 18 newcomers.

Filing

Mrs. Corrine Kreher, retiring village clerk, said petitions were to be filed with her through Monday, although she previously did not announce a specific time deadline.

She said Mrs. Singer called her at home about 4:50 p.m. Monday and said she would like to obtain petitions to run for president of the village board. Mrs. Kreher said she would meet Mrs. Singer at the clerk's office in village hall immediately.

Mrs. Singer obtained her petitions about 5:05 p.m. and was reportedly told by Mrs. Kreher that the petitions had to be turned in by 6 p.m.

Mrs. Kreher, Village Board President Floyd David Moss and five other persons waited at the clerk's office until 8:15 p.m. at which time they declared it was too late for additional filings, they said.

Mrs. Kreher said she returned to her home and at 6:30 p.m., Mrs. Singer called and asked her where she had been. Mrs. Kreher said she responded she had been waiting at the clerk's office for Mrs. Singer's filing. Mrs. Singer was reported to have said she did not know Mrs. Kreher had an office in the village hall and had tried to file the petitions at her home. Mrs. Kreher said she then told Mrs. Singer, "I said 6 p.m. and I stuck to my word. I even stayed an extra 15 minutes to give you extra time."

Responding to Mrs. Singer's statement she had tried to file at Mrs. Kreher's home, the present clerk responded, "I took it for granted you would return them (the petitions) where you got them," she related.

It also was reported that Mrs. Singer, her husband, Fred, and another couple went to Mrs. Kreher's home again about 8:30 p.m. Monday and attempted to convince her to accept the petition, but she again refused. Moss said the refusal to accept the petitions was in line with recommendations from the village attorneys and the activities of the evening were reviewed Tuesday by village board president. Moss heads a ticket entitled the Village Improvement Progressive Party which is opposed by only one independent candidate for trustee, Dean Rochester, an incumbent.

Making up the Moss ticket are: Mrs. Mary Warren, 25 Tulip Court, unopposed candidate for village clerk; Trustee Loren Madison, seeking re-election, Duane Skinner, 24 Westgate Drive, the present village treasurer, seeking election as a trustee, and Keith Biggs, 4013 Kaseberg Lane, also running for trustee.

The trustees are opposed by Dean Rochester, an incumbent seeking re-election as an independent candidate.

Trustee Marvin Ribbing and Mrs. Kreher are retiring from the board. Both cited insufficient time to properly fulfill their duties. The Third Ward aldermanic office in Madison is sought by Gary R. Novich, Ronald L. Grzywacz, Tony Romanic, Tony Trotts, Dave Clark and Mike Mejski. Haynes, incumbent alderman in Ward Five, is opposed by Donald E. Garrett. Incumbent aldermen in the other three Madison wards are unopposed and will be re-elected in the April 15 balloting. They are: First Ward, Paul Ashford; Second Ward, Don Broyles; and Fourth Ward, Mike Sikora.

The Third Ward aldermanic office has been vacant since the death of Stanley Krakowicki early in 1973. In Venice, the only opposition to incumbent alderman has developed in the Fourth Ward where Oscar King is the incumbent. King is seeking re-election and is opposed by Vernell Jackson and James A. Gardner.

Incumbents of the other three wards are unopposed. They include Thomas Voegelie in the First Ward, George Mangiaracino, Second Ward, and George E. Lewis, Third Ward.

Venice, Madison firemen aid in Brooklyn fire

Venice and Madison firemen were called late Tuesday afternoon to assist Brooklyn firemen in fighting a blaze that seriously damaged the Lovejoy school gymnasium. Venice answered a call for assistance at 4:20 p.m. and the Madison department was called at 5 p.m. While the major damage was confined to the gymnasium, other parts of the building were damaged by smoke and water. Defective wiring was believed to have caused the fire.

The three-story brick building, constructed in 1913, and the gymnasium, built in 1930, are scheduled for replacement with a $750,000 bond issue approved last October.

Madison and Venice firemen were at the scene about three hours.

Coordinated Youth Service may open office in Madison

A resolution authorizing Coordinated Youth Services of Granite City to open a similar office in Madison was approved by the Madison City Council during its regular meeting Tuesday night.

The bill also provides $2,000, to be included in the city's 1975-76 budget, to be used for general operation of the proposed Madison CYO office.

Opening of the office will depend upon approval of a $100,000 grant by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission. Application for the funds under the federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 will be submitted by Madison, Ponton Beach and Granite City.

"Mayor Mike Sasyk and I have looked over the operation of Coordinated Youth in Granite City and we both feel its services would be of benefit to Madison," Chief of Police Frank Dutko said.

"Full time counselors would be available to both parents and the youth," he added.

Dutko explained the agency works with all types of social problems and tries to help youths before they get in trouble with the police.

The agency also will assist youth in locating employment. The council approved payment of $8,050 to Mixon Buick of East St. Louis for two detective cars purchased for the joint detective bureau established by the Venice and Madison Police Departments.

Of the total, $7,800 will be reimbursed by a federal grant. In other action, the council approved a special use permit to Leo Pyles, 1544 Second St., for an addition to his present building; accepted Capt. Edward Zabotka's resignation from the police department; approved Paul Lusk and John Essington as auxiliary

Rehabilitation service aids many in county

More than 3,000 persons have been served by the Madison County branch office of the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation since it was opened in Alton in 1968, according to representatives of the agency who spoke before the Tuesday noon meeting of the Rotary Club in the YMCA.

Thomas Walsh, a placement counselor who spoke before the Springfield office, and Gifford Roux and Dave Parrish, representing the Alton office, explained activities and procedures of the program which offers training and retraining for a wide field of handicapped persons.

The division was established in 1920 to help World War I veterans who had been wounded.

Members of the club were asked by the speakers to make referrals to them at any time a member thought the agency could be of help.

Rotarian Walter Stauffer reminded the members to sell their tickets for the Rotary chili day Tuesday, Feb. 25. The Rotarians will be serving chili at the Nidringhaus United Methodist Church between the hours of 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and again between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m.

President Walter Milton announced that Trooper John Lybarger of the Illinois State Police will be the speaker next week.

Instruction in 'doublespeak'

A special section of freshman composition concentrating on "doublespeak" (Eng. Comp. GSK 102 Section 2) will be offered at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville during the spring quarter.

Doublespeak is described as the use of language to conceal information or to deceive and manipulate the reader or listener.

It will be used as an approach to teach the same basic composition skills emphasized in a basic English composition class.

According to David Butler, director of freshman English, students will explore the language of silence, gobbledygook, over-abstractness and misuse of euphemisms.

"The doublespeak is not concerned with precision of meaning. He tends to use words to bully his listeners or readers into submission."

"If he is questioned as to his exact meaning, he will likely appeal to some authority or insist that the listener unquestionably accept his ideas," Butler said.

Doublespeak is a favorite language of some politicians, advertisers and even educators, Butler contends.

Classes will meet from 8:30 a.m. until 9:20 a.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

and representatives of industry were among those enjoying the lavish smorgasbord style dinner.

The Rev. Roy Baugh of Niedringhaus United Methodist Church gave the invocation and Edwin M. Reinegal of Mercer Mortgage, master-of-ceremonies, introduced the distinguished guests.

New officers introduced included: Bill Rosenberg of Carp's Department Store, vice-president of retailing; Anthony Zedolek of Granite City Trust & Savings Bank, vice-president of the credit bureau; and John Blasingame of Illinois Power Co., secretary-treasurer.

Homer Huber of Feder & Huber Furniture, who was re-elected president, commented on the friends and perils involved in the association's program "30 years and more ago, including the Peshmans, Glikas, Morris", Carpe and Schermers.

His remarks underscored a statement that Huber is the Associated Retailers' oldest living director, dating back to Dec. 31, 1937. Hodge was present at the dinner.

Huber said, "We have given good credit service in both good and bad times, even through the depression years."

"The association's credit bureau now has 60,000 names on file from our community and in a one-year period, handled 39,000 reports."

"We try to keep our members informed on new government regulations," Huber said. "Since the Truth in Lending law was enacted it has been up to credit bureaus to straighten it out so businesses can understand it," Huber said.

Speaking of the educational programs offered by Associated Retailers, Huber said, "We sponsor numerous seminars . . . customer relations, telephoning, selling, advertising and fair credit."

"One of the most important we have ever given was a booklet on moving last year. We presented a film for about 3,000 junior high school students, which was recommended by the teachers as a most effective way to reach," the officer said.

Continuing to emphasize the association's role in the community, Huber said, "We also negotiate the clerks' contract and publish a bulletin to keep our members informed of moves in and out of the area."

"Our community is very fortunate at this time to have Glanville Street and American Steel. Just a few years back you must remember, we had an avalanche of plant closings."

"If we can just get the bad news played down a little (about the economy) and get our people to spend a little money I believe things will be alright," Huber said.

Speaking of the proposed new coal storage facilities at the Tri-City Port District, Huber said, "I am proud of what's going on here. They are trying to put into effect something to help with the energy crisis. Coal is coming back and we feel we can do a job for all those around us."

Huber expressed the appreciation of the businessmen for the efforts of Mayor Paul Schuler, City Council members and the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce for "getting a truck and trailer through the community and improving the traffic flow on Madison Avenue and Nameoki Road."

He also introduced and thanked Mrs. Karen Bridick, Retailers office manager, who was in charge of the dinner arrangements.

Buck, irrepressible as usual, opened his remarks with the Retailers' officers, singling out Huber's talk as the night's feature presentation.

Reinegal on his first job as MC and thanking Carl Mathias of Illinois Power for the information on the plant's Polish ancestry, explaining "The only reason he's in arbitration is because Ray Sedolek is the only Redbird taking the question of this year's salary to arbitration. Buck commented on the player's Polish ancestry, explaining "The only reason he's in arbitration is because Ray Sedolek is the only Redbird taking the question of this year's salary to arbitration. Buck commented on the player's Polish ancestry, explaining "The only reason he's in arbitration is because Ray Sedolek is the only Redbird taking the question of this year's salary to arbitration."

Buck compared today's young ball players to his own years as a youth. "We used to play ball with a cracked bat and a kid wrapped up in friction tape and a kid on Lake Drive at Morrison Road at 2:50 a.m. Wednesday."

He was taken by ambulance to Elizabeth Hospital where x-rays were taken and he was released.

"The way we played it you had to learn to get along with the other kids and you learned in a hurry whether you were any good or not. Nowadays, a kid won't play unless Mother drives him to the ballpark five blocks away. Today's kids have new equipment, new ballparks and all the trimmings."

"Turn the kids loose and leave them alone," Buck advised. "My father came once to see me play ball and never came back again. I was good and he knew it and I knew it. You don't have to tell a kid how good he is—he knows it."

Buck, the father of eight children (five girls), admitted he has a hard time practicing baseball. "You can't wait until a kid is 15 years old and takes the SAT test to help him decide what he wants to do. Make him raise his sights before that. If he says he wants to become an accountant, you say how about a competitive business. But turn them loose when it comes to sports."

"What we used to do in sandlot baseball you can see the kids doing in basketball. You can drive through Harlem in New York in mid-July with the temperature over 100 degrees and there they are playing basketball—15 guys to a side—with a taped up ball."

"Look at the ABA and WBA, both are dominated by blacks and Puerto Ricans. Why?—Because they find their own level and this is all they have to do. Things will change eventually when the blacks become more affluent," he said.

"That's what we have to do. Things will change eventually when the blacks become more affluent," he said.

"The search for Miss Brooks' body was halted late Wednesday due to darkness and resumed today."

Buck said he chose of the four best athletes are Stan Musial, Bob Gibson, Larry Wilson and Bob Pettit. He also commented on O. J. Simpson as a fine football player and in dividual.

Cars derail on way to river
Four railroad cars derailed about 1:15 a.m. today on a siding across from the A. O. Smith plant on Illinois Route 3, bound for the river.

The cars were enroute from the Granite City Steel plant to the company's river loading docks.

A railroad spokesman said heavy rains during the past few weeks apparently softened the siding, causing the track to give way.

One car was about half full of steel coils weighing about 30 tons. The car and its contents rolled over the side of the siding and landed in the river.

Replaced a small portion of the track and had two heavy cranes on the scene this morning to lift the cars back onto the track.

Burglarize home
Items valued at about $1,223 were stolen during a burglary at the home of Florence Hamilton of the 2800 block of Herbert Street, it was reported at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday.

The north kitchen window was pried open to gain entry and the interior was ransacked. Matches were believed used for lighting and a matchbook was left in the home.

Also found inside were an old glove and a tire tool. Footprints of different sizes indicated at least two burglars participated, officials said.

Police also found truck tire treads in the lawn leading to the garage door.

Taken were two televisions sets, a stereo, $10 in pennies, $100 worth of tape recordings, records, a radio and jewelry worth about $360.

One of the television sets was found about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday on Stearns Avenue in front of the Colonial Home Nursing Home and was identified by the victim as having been taken from her home.

Skids on ice

Roger Matyas, 21, of 2715 Buxton Ave., was hurt when he car skidded on ice and left the road on Lake Drive at Morrison Road at 2:50 a.m. Wednesday.

He was taken by ambulance to Elizabeth Hospital where x-rays were taken and he was released.

charges are planned against them.

Shortly after being informed of the two stabbings, county authorities began searching Chouteau Island and located blood and clothing in an area near the north tip which formerly had been used as a dumping area for stolen autos.

The Alton Volunteer Rescue Squad began dragging the river with hooks on chains near the bank, where a trail of blood ended.

Also participating was the Wood River Township Rescue Squad.

Dragging operations were hindered by numerous autos under the water which caused divers, from Granite City and other areas, began to search the water.

They had no visibility and could search only by feeling in the water.

Diving operations were suspended at sunset Tuesday and resumed Wednesday morning, with the divers again being requested to dive yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Bartels' body was identified by her family. There were multiple stab wounds, including the neck area.

The search for Miss Brooks' body was halted late Wednesday due to darkness and resumed today.

Mrs. Bartels grew up in Marine, Ill., and had been staying in Texas for some time. She had been visiting in Pomona Beach for one week when she disappeared. She had a young daughter residing in Pomona Beach and had been divorced.

Miss Brooks, from Highland, also had been living in Texas recently. She also had been visiting in this area only a short time.

Whitford's father said his son worked in Madison and arose Tuesday to go to work as usual.

"There's something involved that I don't know about. I don't believe the full story is yet known," the father commented.

Born in East St. Louis, Mrs. Bartels later resided in Marine, Ill., and was a past member of the Edwardsville Chapter of Job's Daughters.

Survivors include a daughter, Katherine Lee Bartels, Edwardsville, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert (LaVerne) Rials of Randallstown, Md.

Also surviving are three brothers, Daniel Thomas Rials, Edwardsville, Robert Rials and Douglas William Rials, both of Randallstown; four sisters, Diana Lynn Rials, Highland, Dale Ann, Annette, Dorothy Ann and Darla Dee Rials, all of Randallstown; her grandparents, Mrs. Helen Thompson, Xenia, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Rollow (Daisy) Rials of Fallon; and her maternal great-grandfather, Irva McDowell, Orlando, Fla.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete. An obituary notice appears elsewhere in this issue.

Annual meet of United Way gives Feb. 20

The annual meeting of members of the Tri-Cities Area United Way at 3:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, at the YMCA auditorium, 201 Street and Edison Avenue, will include election of new directors.

Performance by North pom pom squad Friday

At the February meeting of the Band Parents Association of Granite City High School-North, it was announced that the pom-pom squad will give a special performance in its appearance with the band at the last basketball home game on the evening of Friday, Feb. 14, at the GCHS South gymnasium.

During the basketball meeting conducted by President Delton Groothuis, committee reports were given on "pop and prezel concert" arrangements, the annual senior banquet and a trip being planned for several band members to observe marching band techniques.

Refreshments were served to attending members by Mesdames Andrews, Goldsach and Haupt.

A search has shown that four electronic buggering devices are in operation within the State Capitol complex.

Congress is studying Bell Telephone monitoring and recording of long-distance calls originating in the St. Louis area and five other regions.

Union Electric Co. is asking for a 25 per cent rate increase in the Illinois area it serves. The hike would produce $1,355,000 in annual revenue for the St. Louis-based power utility.

There was abuse of power by the late Pres. Lyndon Johnson and former Pres. Richard Nixon, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin, who headed the Senate Watergate committee, said Tuesday. He cited military intelligence spying on civilians during the Johnson administration.

The U. S. Appellate Parole Board on Tuesday delayed action on an appeal for release from prison of former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner on the basis of health factors. It asked for a full medical report.

A State Finance Department report Tuesday said the Illinois Capital Development Board is operating without adequate guidelines defining its functions and responsibilities.

Not driver of vehicle
Gerald Mullen, 2702 Harding Ave., Blvd., was not the driver of a vehicle that struck Andrew Brown, 17, of 201 Twelfth St., in the alley behind Brown's home Friday, officials said this week.

Officers examined a jeep and said there were no signs that it had struck the pedestrian. Brown was released from St. Elizabeth Hospital after treatment.

'Almanac' aids Bicentennial

ALMANAC OF LIBERTY: by Benjamin F. Schenmer and the editors of Armed Forces Journal; Macmillan; 282 pages; $15.95.

Benjamin F. Schenmer is editor of the Armed Forces Journal, and he is an expert on military history. In his new book, "Almanac of Liberty," he has contributed a significant volume of special interest during America's Bicentennial celebration.

Schenmer has researched U.S. history and has produced generously illustrated sections providing chronologies by year and by month.

His first entry, for instance, goes back to March 23, 1775, when Patrick Henry thundered before the Virginia Convention, "Give me liberty or give me death." It was Henry's dramatic way of demanding that the Colonies resist British rule and raise a Colonial army.

The year-by-year chronology ends with the fateful day of Aug. 9, 1974, when Gerald R. Ford succeeded Richard Nixon as president.

One of the advantages of Schenmer's chronological entries is that he does not reduce them to oversimplified slogans or bits of trivia that make the reader hunger for more information. His research has served him well and he includes a reasonably complete synopsis of the event he is recording.

While his chronology by year is the most important section of "Almanac of Liberty," the author also has a shorter, month-by-month chronology that in brief form will keep historians and other readers up to date with history on a daily basis.

One of the early entries in this section recalls the Jan. 1, 1781, mutiny by six regiments of Pennsylvania troops during the American Revolution, and he adds, "One brought to trial."

There also is a section on battle streamers which designates battles for which ceremonial streamers were authorized in wars from the Revolution to Vietnam. Another section lists the names of the armed forces — from Henry Knox as secretary of war (1789-1794) to the present Howard H. Callaway.

All civilian and military leaders in service are listed. Schenmer and his associates have put together a handsome volume, of particular interest to historians and military men but also of wide interest to anyone concerned with the nation's history.

Trojans hot, build 'inferno' for their towering visitors

There turned out to be "nothing to fear but fear itself" for the Madison High School Trojans as they went up against a towering lineup from Riverview Gardens at the Madison High basketball court Tuesday.

The Trojans emerged victorious 66-61, the fifth victory in a row for the MHS squad.

Although Madison had the better pre-game record of 16-3 for the season, compared to 7-12 for Riverview Gardens, the Trojans had to be impressed with the opposing lineup which included 6 feet, 11½ inch Paul Fichtinger and 6-8 Rick Plate. The floor also was scattered with 6-6 and 6-7 Riverview players.

Any intimidation the Trojans might have felt disappeared quickly, as Madison moved ahead 13-8 in the first period and increased the lead to 39-26 by the half.

At one point in the second quarter, Riverview Gardens made good advantage of its dead air at the free throw line to outscore the Trojans 15-9 in the third period, but Madison continued to lead 48-41 going into the final quarter.

Early in the last quarter, the visitors pulled within three points, 53-50, but the Trojans again used teamwork and on-target field shooting to increase the lead to five and hold that advantage to the final horn.

Mudolph Bradley of Madison was the game's high scorer with 24 points, even though he did not score in the third period. Plate of Riverview Gardens was second with 21 and his teammate, Fichtinger, was next with 18.

Others scoring for Madison were Ron Jones with 14, Darrell Franklin 11, Curtis Bradley 7, Leroy Booker and Mike Williams with four each and Emmett Timmons, two.

Madison scored on 43 per cent of its field goals attempts, hitting 28 of 64, while the visitors had 42 per cent with 25 of 59.

Riverview Gardens was hot from the free throw line, sinking 11 of 13 for 84 per cent of their charity tosses — 10 of 16. Fourteen fouls were called on each team.

Madison had 13 turnovers to 21 for the visitors, and the Trojans pulled down 37 rebounds to 34 by their opponents.

Bradley snared 16 rebounds and had 11 assists, in addition to leading in points scored. Franklin was credited with eight rebounds.

The Trojans junior varsity squad also was tough, downing Riverview Gardens 76-46. Randall Jones led with 24 points and Rodney Davis had 16.

Madison will host Granite City High School North Tuesday, with a junior varsity game at 6:30 p.m. and the varsity battle to follow at 8 p.m.

GC 13-year-olds skate like Canadians, win all their ice hockey games

Canadians dominate the professional hockey leagues because they have more ice skating opportunities than do residents of the U.S.

But the Americans are improving fast in younger age groups, including those in the Granite City area.

With the 1974-75 Amateur Ice Hockey season winding down, the P and S Amusement team of Granite City remains undefeated in 18 outings at the Wilson Park ice rink.

A member of the Bantam Division, comprised of youngsters aged 13-14, P and S Amusement has scored 109 goals against its opponents while allowing only 17 opposing goals to enter the net.

Goalkeeper Frank Preha during the weekend posted his seventh and eighth shutouts of the season as his smooth-skating squad downed Florissant, Mo., 8-0 and St. Charles, Mo., 7-0.

Coach Bill Hodges relates that the team has a capable defensive unit in Gary Phelps, Will Connolly, Terry Page, Kent Pineda, Bill Portell and George

Cage Cougars praised for fast improvement

"I've never seen a team improve as fast as they have," said Coach Ed McQuillan of the University of Illinois—Chicago Circle basketball Chukkas. He was referring to the Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Cougars who Monday night had all but wiped out Chicago Circle, 101 to 75. The Cougars now are 16-3 while McQuillan's Circle club dropped to 8-13.

"SUIU was good early (Dec. 18) when the Cougars beat us at home 92-63, but Coach Jim Dudley didn't go to his bench in that one like he did here tonight," McFarland (Keith) and Strubberg (John) are two of the best outside shots I've ever seen, and when you try to stop them the Cougars' fast-break will kill you," McQuillan said, shaking his head in awe.

McFarland led all scorers with 25 points as he hit 12 of 18 field goal efforts.

For the season, the former Triad (St. Jacob-Troy) high schooler is hitting a sensational .554 average for his 19 games — 199 out of 359 tries.

"Marvellous Mac" holds the SUIU single game high record of 44. He's 10th in the nation in scoring.

Strubberg, a year behind senior McFarland, hit nine of 17 two-pointers against Circle and ran his season's field goal mark to a sizzling .513.

McFarland and Strubberg in the first half each made seven baskets. Their efforts paced the Cougars to a 44-33 lead at the half despite the stubborn, hard-playing Circle club.

Chuck Lambert, with 24 points, and Alton Carter, with 23, paced the losers' attack.

SUIU's season team field goal shooting percentage and the spread between the Cougars and their opponents perhaps best tells the reason for the 1974-75 success. The Cougars are hitting .497 from the floor while holding their opponents to .408.

While McFarland and Strubberg were wearing out the bottom line, the Cougars' defense was getting some sparking help from teammates.

Dan Donahue, the Cougars' future All-American candidate, had his best night of his short (he's a freshman) collegiate career.

While pulling down a game high 16 rebounds — he's third in the nation in this category — Dandy Dan registered 15 points. Three of his game's six fielders had the crowd gasping as he hooked them in. The 6-9 Donahue made good six of 14 tries from the floor.

Two of Dudley's ace substitute firemen, guard Tom Butler and forward Butch Ferree, a pair of Indiana prep stars on the SUIU roster, also turned in some almost unbelievable field goal shooting. Butler made seven of ten and Ferree connected on five of six.

Only Vince Barnett, the freshman forward from Decatur's MacArthur High, was held scoreless. He took only two shots and then turned his attention to rebounding and controlling the ball.

Barnett pulled down nine carous. Regular guard Don Koppenshaw hit on three of four field shots.

Tonight the Cougars will host Indiana U-Purdue U. Indianapolis at the Edwardsville High gym.

On Saturday night, Dudley's Dandies will get another chance to avenge one of the three losses they have suffered.

The University of Wisconsin Parkside (Kenosha), which beat the Cougars, 91-67, will be SUIU's opponent Saturday on the Meramec Community College floor in south St. Louis County.

Three of Parkside's starters, Mal Mahone, Marshall Hill and Leandra Scott, won starters' berths on the St. Louis University Bills before transferring to the Wisconsin school. The talented trio played prep basketball at Chicago's Gordon Tech High.

Strong showing by 'Y' swimmers; district is next

The Granite City YMCA swimming team competed during the weekend in its final dual swim meet of the 1974-75 season before beginning preparation for district competition at Carbondale.

The local swim club scored 93 points against Alton for its strongest showing of the season. District competition at Carbondale is scheduled to start March 1 for girls and March 2 for boys.

A victory there would advance the local team to the state YMCA championship meet at George Williams College in Downers Grove, Ill., March 15-16.

Four swimmers earned double victories at Alton: Ken Jolly in the 100-yard backstroke and 100-yard breaststroke; Judy Reisinger, 100-yard freestyle and 50-yard freestyle; David Jolly, 50-yard freestyle and 50-yard butterfly; and Denise Darnell, 25-yard freestyle and 25-yard backstroke competition.

Resie Baggot won the 50-yard freestyle event and placed second in the 100-yard freestyle.

Earning points also for the Granite City aquatic club were: Christ Barnett, third place in 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle and 50-yard backstroke; Julia Schellman, third in 25-yard freestyle and 25-yard breaststroke; Beth Wilson third in 50-yard freestyle; Jason Jolly, second in both 25-yard freestyle and 25-yard butterfly;

20th Venice win in 21 games as 85-40 romp past Jameyer

Venice High School cagers chalked up their 20th consecutive basketball victory of the 1974-75 season Tuesday at home at the expense of Jameyer, 85-40.

Junior Mike Henry returned to his high scoring ways with 22 points as Venice led 20-8, 48-10 and 66-18 at the quarters.

Venice poured in shots from the field, overpowering the visitors 41-13 on two-pointers. Valmeijer hit on 14 free throws while Venice made good three charity tosses.

Ranked second in the state among Class A schools, Venice had nine different players score: Henry 22, Reggie Gardner 18, James Turner and Venice Govan 10 each, Larrick Arnold eight, James Crowder and Ricky Salmond six each, Algie Crawford four and Mike Walker, one.

The Red Devils' 1974-75 record now is 20 wins and one defeat.

Schmitt dinner tickets available to wrestlers

Tickets for the "Bill Schmitt Testimonial Dinner" planned for March 20 at the Granite City High School South cafeteria still may be obtained in advance of the public sale by former GCHS students involved in the school's wrestling program in the past 25 years.

John L. "Jerry" McDonald, business manager for the dinner, said today.

The testimonial event will honor Bill "Red" Schmitt, who is marking his 25th year this season as varsity wrestling coach at Granite City High School South and GCHS.

"Smitty" is being honored in observance of the quarter-century of outstanding wrestling, his unmatched dedication to our youth and the many distinctions he has brought to our community," McDonald said.

Former Warrior wrestlers may obtain information or tickets by contacting Bob Patrick, ticket chairman, at the Press-Record, 876-2000.

Lancers dominate Steeler wrestlers

"We underestimated Belleville East," Coach Walt Whitaker commented after his Granite City High School North wrestling squad lost to the visiting Lancers 34-14 Tuesday night at North.

The Steeler squad managed only three victories and one tie, losing the remaining matches.

Steeler winners were: Terry Johnson, 138 pounds, by a 6-2 decision; Dave Whitsell, 145, by an 8-1 decision; and Jim Barker, heavyweight, with a pin in 2 minutes, 44 seconds.

Eric Schmissner, 119 pounds, fought to a 2-2 tie.

Whitaker commented, "They were a lot stronger than we had thought they would be."

Fourth year of two-class basketball regional meets; first games Feb. 24

Basketball regional competition for the fourth consecutive year will be conducted in two enrollment divisions—Class AA for high schools of 751 or more students and Class A for those with enrollments of 750 or less.

At the Class AA meet in Collinsville, Granite City High School South is paired with Highland, and the second tournament game will see O'Fallon colliding with Granite City High School North.

In the Dupo Class A regional, Venice meets Lovejoy while Madison draws a bye; the MHS Trojans will oppose the winner of the Freeburg-Bellefonte St. Henry contest.

The curtain rises for the 80th meet Feb. 24 when competition in the annual Illinois High School Association (IHSAA) boys' state tournament series gets under way with opening games of the Class A Regional.

Pairings for the Class A regionals, which will be conducted the week of Feb. 24-28, and the Class AA regionals, which will be held the week of March 3-7, were drawn up by Executive Secretary Harry Fitzhugh.

Defending Class A champion Lawrenceville, now up in enrollment to Class AA status, opens against Mt. Carmel in the Olney (East Richland) Regional and is top-seeded there.

Defending Class AA champion Maywood (Proviso) is top-seeded there.

East), sporting credentials to become only the fifth school in history to win back-to-back titles. Is top-seeded in its own regional and will play the winner of the Cicero (Morton East) - Riverside-Brookfield opener.

Both Lawrenceville and Proviso East are among the list of 13 schools to win a pair of titles.

Only four schools have won three: Rockford in 1911-19-38, Centralia in 1918-22-42, Freeport (Sr.) in 1915-26-51, and Springfield (HS) in 1917-35-59.

First team to take back-to-back championships was Elgin in 1924-25.

Mt. Vernon won in 1949-50, Rockford (West) finished first in 1955-56.

Dolton (Thorndike) claimed the last one-class title in 1971 and won again in Class AA in 1972.

It is noted, schools are classified according to enrollment; schools with 750 or less students are in Class A and schools with 751 or more students are in Class AA.

Palos Hills - (Chicago Chieftans), the leading candidate to succeed Lawrenceville in Class A, battles Manteno in the first game of the Kankakee (McMans) regional.

In Class A, the Chester, Dupo and St. Jacob (Triad) regionals may come under close watch.

At Chester, Sparta is top-seeded and will play the winner of the Campbell Hill (Trico)-Gorham game.

Sparta is coached this year by Jack Blickensderfer, who guided Cerro Gordo to back-to-back appearances in the Assembly Hall the previous two years.

Host St. Jacob (Triad) is top-seeded in its own regional, which could be among the toughest in the class.

Triad will face the winner of the Alton (Marquette)-Livingston game in the quarterfinals, and could play either Madison, Highland (St. Paul) or Trenton (Wesclin) in the title tilt.

At Dupo, Madison is rated No. 1 and Venice No. 2 and they could meet for the championship. The Trojans have defeated Venice's Red Devils but Venice is considered as possibly the Class A state favorite due to its tournament experience.

One of the more interesting Class AA regionals will be at Normal (Comm.), where the host Ironmen and highly-seeded Bloomington could meet in the title game.

The Park Ridge (Maine State) regional could produce some fireworks with both Maine

South and Chicago (Gordon Tech) rated 1-2 there.

At South Holland (Thornwood), Harvey (Thornton) is top-seeded and will play the winner of the Chicago (Brother Rice)-Blue Island (Eisenhower) game in the quarterfinals, while host Thornwood is No. 2 seeded.

Breese (Mater Dei), which last year finished fourth in the Class AA state final tournament, was the only school to drop from Class AA to Class A.

Mater Dei is top-seeded at Okaville.

A total of 464 teams will compete in the Class A series, while a record 238 will battle in the Class AA series.

Champions of the 64 Class A regionals will advance to 32 sectionals, which will be played March 4-5. Super-sectionals are set for March 11.

The fourth Class A state final tournament will be at the Assembly Hall, Champaign, March 14-15.

Class AA sectionals will be played March 11-12, 14 at 16 sites. Super-sectionals are set for March 18.

The seven super-sectional winners will be joined by the Chicago Public League champion in the fourth Class AA state final tournament at the Assembly Hall, Champaign, March 21-22.

Both state final tournaments will be telecast throughout the state on statewide networks.

Warriors favored in this weekend's district mat meet

Although pairings and seedings for the Illinois High School Association district wrestling meet at Edwardsville this weekend will not be made until tonight, the Warriors of Granite City High School South are favored to successfully defend their crown, a possible 18th district win in a row.

Competition at the Tiger Gymnasium begins with first-round action tomorrow at 6 p.m. and resumes at 6 p.m. Saturday with second-round bouts.

Championship bouts are to begin at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Other than South, GCHS North, Alton, Bethalto, Collinsville, Highland, Roxana, Wood River and the host school will vie for the title and the opportunity to send individual matmen to perform well," said Whitaker.

The Stealers include: 98 pounds—Keith Whelan 23-3; 105—Matt McCullough 25-1; 126—Jim Starling 24-6; 145—Dave Whitsell 23-4-1; and heavyweight—Jim Barker 20-5.

Warrior mentor William Schmitt notes that Woody Halbrook, at 105, and James Caschetta, at 112, are the only returning South district champions from last year.

Halbrook, who had his perfect season record halted at the Southwestern Conference meet when he was injured and lost by forfeit, is well and in the lineup.

"We aren't sure yet will be about Brian Wilson," reports Schmitt. Wilson, a 155-pound wrestler who was defeated for the first time this season last weekend, is still suffering from the flu.

Schmitt's comment about the district—"It is a stepping stone to better things for the winning school."

"We are depending on all our matmen to perform well," said Whitaker.

The Stealers include: 98 pounds—Keith Whelan 23-3; 105—Matt McCullough 25-1; 126—Jim Starling 24-6; 145—Dave Whitsell 23-4-1; and heavyweight—Jim Barker 20-5.

Warrior mentor William Schmitt notes that Woody Halbrook, at 105, and James Caschetta, at 112, are the only returning South district champions from last year.

Halbrook, who had his perfect season record halted at the Southwestern Conference meet when he was injured and lost by forfeit, is well and in the lineup.

"We aren't sure yet will be about Brian Wilson," reports Schmitt. Wilson, a 155-pound wrestler who was defeated for the first time this season last weekend, is still suffering from the flu.

Schmitt's comment about the district—"It is a stepping stone to better things for the winning school."

DNR will monitor fishing pressure

By BOB WHITE

It is strange, indeed, to be reporting now that trout season is open in southwestern Wisconsin.

It may be strange but it's true: trout season opened in the eight counties in the southwest corner of the state on Jan. 1 and will remain open through the summer and until Sept. 30.

The daily creel limit in those counties will be five trout per day throughout the season. In other counties of the state, the limit is five when the season opens, but increases to 10 on June 1.

The reason for the experimental Jan. 1 opener isn't that the Department of Natural Resources really expected to see fly rod purists lined up along the stream banks on the first day of the year.

To the contrary, the idea simply is to remove the psychological lure of the opening day tradition, and hopefully, to actually reduce the crowds at any given time.

Fishermen in Illinois and elsewhere have found that, by doing away with the traditional opening day, they have eliminated many of the large crowds which always showed up at a few fishing holes on the first day. After the first day or two, more normal numbers of fishermen are counted.

This is what Wisconsin has in mind in opening the trout season at such an early date. The DNR will monitor fishing pressure on those streams throughout the season to determine whether the experiment is successful in cutting down on opening day mob activity.

Indications in the trial exist for other fishing seasons, too, of course, although it is doubtful that sound fishery management could do without seasons altogether.

Other changes in the fishing regulations for 1975 in Wisconsin are slight. Of major importance to many anglers is the opening date of the general fishing season because of the necessity to plan vacations in advance.

The general statewide opener this year will be on Saturday, May 3.

That will be for trout, muskie, northern pike, walleye, and bass on most inland waters.

Daily creel limits will be: trout 5 (increasing to 10 on June 1), muskie 1, northern pike 5, and 5 each for walleye and bass. There are special seasons for certain designated waters and fish, which are included in the digest of regulations which is given with the purchase of a fishing license.

Licenses will remain at the same prices for which they are presently sold, which is too high, in the opinion of many.

The annual resident license is $4.25, but nonresidents must choose between an individual annual license at $12.50, a 4-day license for $5.50, a 15-day license for $7.50, or the annual family fishing license which includes children 16 and 17 years old and both parents for $18.

All fishermen 16 years of age or older must have a license. New licenses are required for 1975. Throw the old $12.50 models away.

New emblem for restaurants

The Greater Granite City Restaurant Association at its Tuesday afternoon meeting in Charlie's Restaurant approved the design of a new decal emblem for members.

The emblem will be placed by the groups 20 members on restaurant doors and other prominent places, indicating their membership. The decal reads, "Greater Granite City Restaurant Association 1975-76 member."

Tommy Lane, owner and operator of the George Lindsey Family Steak House, designed the emblem. Lane is public relations chairman for the association.

Walter Stauffer, association president, announced the group will attend a dinner at Forest Park Community College on Wednesday, March 5, prepared by the Hotel, Motel and Restaurant school students.

A general discussion was held on Granite City sewer rates being charged members for the new secondary sewage plant. The members believe they are being "greatly overcharged" in relation to the use of the sewer. One member noted that most of restaurant water is consumed by customers or used in cooking.

The group also held a discussion on sponsoring an Explorer Post with a restaurant management specialty as a community service. A meeting will be held later with representatives of the Boy Scouts of America.

Cecil T. Miner, operator of Park 'N' Eat, and membership chairman, announced that a major membership drive will be held during the next two months.

Airport

there will be no way to space aircraft arrivals and departures as close together as the master planners call for. In the past, a DC-9 closely following a larger jet was completely upset by wake turbulence and crashed. It was noted.

2. A potential new technology, the Microwave Landing System (MLS) which the master planners said would provide major capacity gains at Lambert probably will not be developed before the late 1980s. In any event, the Federal Aviation Administration has stressed that while MLS would increase reliability of service, it will not increase airport capacity.

3. Even if such a system were eventually developed, besides being too late to help St. Louis it probably would not be usable on the proposed arrival runway. This is because of Lambert's bowl-like terrain and the obstructions created by two major buildings at the McDonnell Douglas Corporation's plant. The buildings, which house large assembly operations, would have to be torn down and relocated in order to carry out the master planners' recommendations.

4. A new air traffic control system recommended by the master planners to increase Lambert capacity will not work, it is contended. It calls for curved instrument approach procedures which require electronic breakthroughs that have not yet occurred.

Further, the procedures do not allow long enough straight-line approaches for necessary safe aircraft stabilization, and would require procedures that could not be used with the recommended instrument system, they asserted.

The evaluation team is composed of:

George B. Litchford, one of the leading international experts on instrument landing systems and holder of major patents in the field.

He has represented the United States in international negotiations in the adoption of new systems, including preliminary explorations of MLS development. His firm, Litchford Systems, Inc., in Northport, N. Y., is active in electronic system development and consulting.

I. E. "Gus" Sommermeier, an expert on air traffic procedures and airline aircraft operations from the viewpoint of pilots.

including service on large jets. Martin A. Warskow, an expert on airport capacity and air traffic evaluation techniques.

He served as project manager beginning in 1959 for the development of airport capacity evaluation methods now used nationally and internationally. He is senior vice president for R. Dixon Speas in Minneapolis. The evaluation team began its work with the publication in November of the preliminary report of the Lambert master planners.

The evaluation was completed following presentation of the final report on Jan. 24 of the $322,158 master plan study to determine the potential of Lambert without significant expansion of its 1,850-acre site.

In setting forth their $145,000,000 plan to extend Lambert's useful life as the St. Louis area's only major airport until 1995, the planners said that a number of conditions were required for their plan to work.

The master plan was based on assumptions that new technology would be developed, that the new air traffic control procedures would be adopted, that the St. Louis area's economic decline would continue, that aviation growth would be at slow recession-level rates, that there would be greatly increased use of big, wide-bodied jets and that sharp limitations would be imposed on non-airline use of Lambert.

Without the reduced aircraft operations resulting from the accelerated use of wide-body jets and without the technological breakthroughs, the runway improvements that the master planners recommended for Lambert will not add significantly to its present capacity, it was asserted Wednesday.

The Federal Aviation Administration has not accepted for its general planning purposes the development of new technology that the Lambert master planners count on as being on-stream by the late 1970s.

The Lambert master planners accepted as definite the dates contained in the report for the FAA's research and development office.

The FAA report emphasized that the dates were set forth neither as official recommendations nor new policy, but rather as guidance as to the possibilities for improving the operations at eight major airports that already have instrument capabilities far superior to Lambert's potential, the evaluation team said.

The FAA has asked the master planners to give alternative recommendations for Lambert to show what would happen to Lambert capacity if the new technologies come later than the dates shown in the master plan or if some of the technologies should fail to be achieved.

Further the FAA does not agree that wide-body jets will be used as extensively as the Lambert master planners predict.

The work of the three experts will form part of the Airport Authority's official analysis that it is required to make as part of the federal review process on its application to build the new airport at Columbia-Waterloo.

State highway deaths cut almost in half

The superintendent of the Illinois State Police, Dwight E. Pitman, announced this week that during the month of January, 96 persons died of injuries sustained in traffic accidents on Illinois highways. This is a reduction of 46 compared to the month of January, 1974.

Lieutenant Albert J. Bertagnoli, state police commander for the nine-county area included in District 11, Maryville, reported that 13 persons were killed last month as the result of 12 accidents in District 11, which includes the Quad-City area. Nine of these accidents were investigated by the state police. Seven of the nine were single car, run off the road, type accidents when the weather was clear and the roadway dry.

District 11 troopers investigated a total of 360 traffic accidents in January.

NECKLACE IS TAKEN

A $15 diamond necklace was stolen from a jewelry box at the home of Winston Mayes, 4132 Rode Ave., it was reported at 8:55 p.m. Tuesday. There were no signs of forced entry into the home and Mayes said the necklace may have disappeared anytime in recent months.

Dobrey residents want pump replaced

By HARRY BARNES
Press-Record Staff Writer
A group of Dobrey Slough residents has leveled criticism at the East Side Levee and Sanitary District board of trustees because of its action transferring $40,500 from a special Dobrey Slough right-of-way fund to meet this month's district payroll.

The reason, they say, is that the levee district now won't have money available to replace a pump in the Dobrey Slough drainage line which was built by the state and placed in operation late last year.

In a telegram signed "Dobrey Slough Residents," the group told the five-man levee board: "We see you are robbing Peter to pay patronage at the expense of Dobrey Slough residents. How do you propose to repay this? Not from taxes from St. Clair County, we hope."

The Dobrey Slough right-of-way fund was set up by the levee district several years ago to finance the purchase of right-of-way for a Dobrey Slough drainage line that would have cut across Pontoon Road, drained the water along the Alton & South railroad right-of-way and into Horseshoe Lake.

Efforts to obtain easements for the line proposed at that time failed when three property owners refused to sell right-of-way and took the matter to court, where the cases still are pending.

Subsequently, the Illinois Division of Waterways planned and financed a drainage line that carries slough drainage along Pontoon Road to the Nameoki Drainage Canal, using two pumps to facilitate the drainage flow.

The drainage program sponsored by the state last year cost $146,000. A permanent drainage plan that would cost several million dollars as part of the long-planned Hillsdale Drainage program would be financed for the area as a project being developed by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. But that program is several years away.

Last week the board of trustees of the Levee District, confronted with the prospect of payless paydays until it can sell tax anticipation warrants under its 1975 tax levy, voted to transfer the $40,500 that was in escrow in the Dobrey Slough right-of-way fund to the general fund account to be used to pay salaries for February.

The action brought a quick response from Dobrey residents who said they were planning to ask the levee board to use some of the $40,500 to finance purchase of a new pump to replace one in the new slough drainage line that is proving inadequate and presenting maintenance problems.

Granite City assumed responsibility for maintenance of the drainage line and the pumps following a controversy of several months over whether the state or the city should handle the maintenance.

The city had insisted that it control the main pump at Wabash and Amos avenues which pumps drainage from the Dobrey line into Nameoki ditch. City engineers contended that during heavy rains the ditch fills rapidly and drainage from Dobrey slough at the same time could cause serious flooding. The state agreed the city could control that pump.

When the project first was planned, the state insisted that it retain maintenance responsibility. But when the line was completed, the state Division of Waterways reversed its stand and asked the city to take over full maintenance of the entire project. The city at first refused, but later agreed so that the drainage line could be placed in operation.

Lionel Portell, city superintendent of streets, said this week that the pump located south of the slough area near the Alton & South railroad tracks, just west of Pontoon

Road, "leaves much to be desired in a project of that kind." Portell told the Press-Record that the pump is a six-inch diesel fuel pump that must be turned on and off manually. "It's the kind of pump that should have a man watching it all the time," Portell said. "With eight other pumps maintained at sewer breaks, its hard for us to assign a man full time to watch another pump operation," he said.

Portell said the pump also is the type that becomes clogged by debris washing into the intake. This requires cleaning. The pump, he explained, will handle 1,500 gallons of water per minute under a normal flow, but the amount of water handled is reduced as "head pressure is built up" because of increased water volume.

The street superintendent said he believes the state should have installed the same type of pump as it did at Wabash and Amos. That pump is an automatic electric pump that requires little maintenance and little inspection while it is working.

A spokesman for the Dobrey residents said the pump should be replaced if it presents any kind of a problem, and the levee district should be willing to pay for it.

Time to control state spending

By MAURICE W. SCOTT
Executive Vice President Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois

SPRINGFIELD — The chief goal of the new Illinois General Assembly must be to bring state spending under control, or the state's operating fund, the general revenue fund, will be in serious trouble by July 1, 1976, if not before.

Total spending during the fiscal year that ended June 30, 1974, was a record high — a staggering $6.03 billion, or a $470 million jump over the preceding 12 months (State Comptroller George W. Lindberg's Dec. 18, 1974, report).

If the General Assembly doesn't exercise its spending control authority judiciously, state tax increases will be the chief problem for the Legislature in 1976, and maybe in 1975.

Let's do a little analyzing. As of Dec. 1 last year, the available balance in the state's general revenue fund was around $358 million (Comptroller Lindberg's Dec. 18 report), and revenues into this fund from the various taxes are to date holding up well.

Even though the recession has been deepening, high inflation has caused prices on the things people buy to rise and tax receipts to increase. For instance, gross income tax receipts for the first 5 months of fiscal 1975 (fiscal 1975 is the period from July 1, 1974 to July 1, 1975) are up $61 million over the first 5 months of fiscal 1974, sales taxes are up $40 million for the same period, public utility tax receipts are up $12 million, interest receipts on state funds and investments are up $15 million; about the only major tax that shows a decline thus far in this fiscal year is the cigarette tax, down $2 million.

However, a continuing, unsteady economy can lessen such increases for the remaining seven months of fiscal 1975. The slowdown in auto and farm machinery sales can materially affect future sales tax revenues, and people either out of work or anxious about the stability of their jobs can have a material effect upon the revenues of related taxes.

Other factors enter the picture. The "veto override" session of the Illinois General Assembly in December added $98 million total state spending for the 1975 fiscal year, and of this amount, $56 million is a further burden on the general revenue fund — the remaining part of the $98 million will be paid with federal funds and from other state funds, such as the motor fuel tax fund.

A deficiency appropriation of at least $134 million will be needed in early 1976 for public aid purposes, and this amount can easily go higher if we experience a severe winter. The $134 million will undoubtedly increase the fiscal 1976 public aid budget by the same amount.

Now, even if the current available balance in the general revenue fund stays at $358 million, when an amount equivalent to $324 million ($56 million plus $134 million plus $134 million) is subtracted therefrom, a dangerously low balance can be predicted for the general revenue fund by July 1, 1976.

A balance of at least $100 million should be in this fund at all times to have a sufficient cash flow to cover payment of state bills and to preserve the state's credit rating. Comptroller Lindberg says that when this balance falls below $200 million the state enters into a financially dangerous zone, because this balance would cover only seven days of spending. At that time, other programs must be cut back or new revenue must be found.

All this thinking does not even take into account future added or increased spending that may be needed for programs presently on the state books. There will be a demand to increase the appropriation for the common schools (kindergarten through high school) at both the 1975 and 1976 sessions of the General Assembly, higher education already is asking 13.13 per cent more for fiscal 1976 than it received for 1975, appropriations for the public employee pension systems will some day have to be more adequate, and other social programs will be in the picture.

Record spending should be closely watched, and so-called gimmick tax relief programs should be out the window. A tax relief program that gives an individual two dollars worth of relief in one hand but causes him to shell out four dollars from the other hand two years from now is no relief at all.

HOW TO STOP NEW TAXES

By

LESTER W. BRANN, JR.
President
Illinois State
Chamber of Commerce

In an era of galloping inflation we all pay closer attention to our checkbooks to make sure they are balanced.

There's another checkbook we ought to pay closer attention to and that's our public checkbook — the revenue and spending picture of our government bodies.

Interestingly enough, the State of Illinois is required by its Constitution to keep a balanced checkbook. So when Governor Walker submits his budget on March 5, he must make sure his projections for state revenues are at least equal to the amounts he plans to spend.

That is going to be an immensely difficult job this year. Government, like individuals, is being pressed on all sides by increased costs. Food for state institutions costs more. Gasoline for state vehicles costs more. Asphalt and concrete for highways costs more. Fuel to heat state buildings costs more.

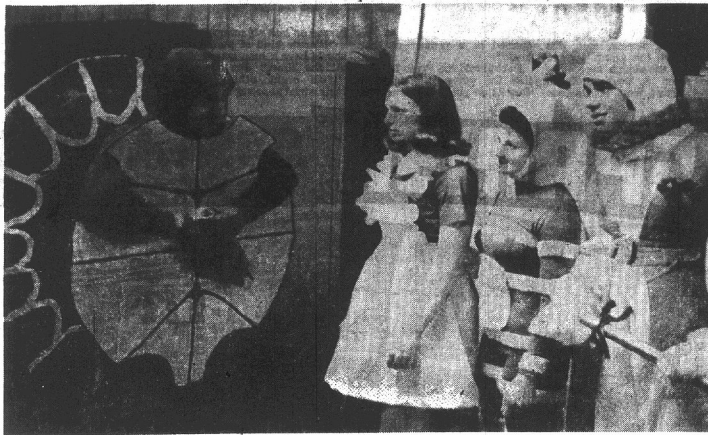

People costs are up, too. Salaries paid state employees are higher and assistance payments to welfare recipients were boosted by the Legislature. Remember, too, that over one million people in Illinois get all or at least a large part of their living from the state.

To keep the budget in balance, both the Governor and the Legislature are going to have to forego some pet projects that crop up each year. They are also going to have to take a hard look at existing programs and engage in some trimming.

The Governor's recent belt-tightening directive to save $15 million is commendable. Reducing office expense, copying costs and overtime in a hard economic period is certainly in order. Many private firms are making the same slashes in operating costs.

State government in Illinois has enjoyed a six-year surge in growth. Many new programs have begun. Many services to people have expanded. Now is an appropriate time to look carefully at that growth and to prune where necessary.

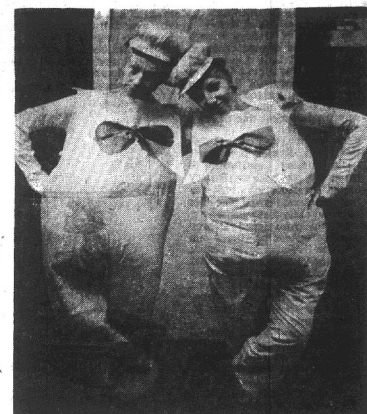

These decisions are tough ones to make. But they are far easier than deciding who or what to hit with a new tax. Easier for the politician — and far easier for the taxpayer.

ALICE AND FRIENDS. "Alice in Wonderland" will be presented by Masquers, Inc., Sunday at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. at the Miners Theatre in Collinsville. Discussing the performance Tuesday at a rehearsal in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church, from left, Jack French, who plays the "turtle," Miss Kathy L. Dartt as "Alice," Mrs. Margaret Pennell as "cat" and Mark Stephens as "rabbit." Most members of the cast are Granite Cityans. Mrs. Beverly Scroggins is the director. Tickets are 50 cents for adults and children and are available at the door.

TWEEDLEDEE AND TWEEDLEDUM. Mrs. Betty Dartt, left, and Mrs. Betty Skirball will play the two lovable characters, Tweedledee and Tweedledum, in the Masquers, Inc., production Sunday at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. of "Alice in Wonderland" at the Miners Theatre in Collinsville.

Miss Anita Gasparovic was guest of honor at a bridal shower given this week by Miss Mary Perdue, her maid of honor; Mrs. Angela Shilt, her sister; and Mrs. Joyce Gasparovic, her aunt and godmother, at the latter's home, 9 Nassau.

The rathskeller of the home was decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells.

An arrangement of wedding bells and pink ribbons was suspended over a table holding a punch bowl, a silver coffee service and a special double heart cake inscribed with the first names of the bride and groom.

The cake was baked and decorated by the bride-to-be's sister-in-law, Mrs. Susan Gasparovic.

Cub Scout derby at St. Mary's

Larry Lybarger scored a first place win in the annual Pinewood Derby, sponsored by Cub Pack 47 at St. Mary's Catholic School hall, and received a plaque.

The program was opened with presentation of the colors by Webelos Tony Hudak and Ricky Hart and the pledge to the flag repeated in unison.

Fourteen cars were entered in the race. Billy Dorris received the second place award and Gerald Werner, third place.

All Cub Scouts participating in the contest were presented "derby" plaques and a special "broken axle" award was received by Doug Rolling.

Plaques and other awards given the race contestants were made by Assistant Cubmaster Bob Noud. Serving as race officials were Bob Pierce and Ed Dohnal, starters, and Bill Dorris and Jim Greer, finish line judges.

Cubmaster Richard Ballow and Pack Committee Chairman Dohnal spoke briefly concerning attendance at meetings and urged parents to volunteer their help.

The cubmaster presented the following achievement and service awards: Webelos Joey Anselmo, aquanaut, forester and sportsman awards; Gerald Werner, Wolf badge; Chris Noud, Wolf badge and gold arrow point; Doug Rolling, dinner cord and Larry Lybarger, assistant dinner cord.

The evening concluded with a social hour and refreshments.

McCunneys mark 25th anniversary

A surprise party honoring Mr. and Mrs. William McCunney on their 25th wedding anniversary was given this week at the VFW Hall, 2044 Washington Ave.

About 125 well-wishers greeted the couple, who received many gifts from their family and friends.

Hosting the affair were Mrs. McCunney's mother, Mrs. Parsy Moad of Venice; and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Len (Mary) Whiteside, and brothers and sisters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Moad and Mr. and Mrs. Woody Moad, all of Granite City.

Among the guests were the honorees' children, Steven, Mary Helen and Doris McCunney, who reside at home, and their son and daughter-in-law, Air Force Sergeant and Mrs. Richard McCunney from Altus, Okla. Another son, Air Force Lieutenant William McCunney, who is stationed at Mather AFB, Calif., was unable to attend.

The McCunneys live at 1825 Edwardsville Road, Madison. He is employed by A.T.&T. in St. Louis. While the party was in progress members of McCunney's family in Philadelphia, Pa., telephoned their congratulations to the couple.

A buffet supper was served during the social evening.

Carnival in March at McKinley

Mrs. Sadie Bringer and Mrs. Rosalie Bunte, co-chairmen of the "Ideas of March" carnival, sponsored by the McKinley PTA, outlined activities planned for the annual event at the PTA meeting Tuesday night.

Planned for Friday, March 7, at McKinley School, the carnival will feature games, refreshments, bazaar booths and a cake walk, with entertainment for all family members.

Strolling clowns who will talk to younger children and make balloon animals will be among the highlights, according to the co-chairmen.

Mrs. Gertrude Luebben, unit president, presided at the business session held in the school cafeteria. Vice-president Mrs. Lyn Frangulidis gave the PTA prayer.

Appointed to a nominating committee were Mrs. Joyce Thomason, chairman, and Mrs. Mary Ann Ramsey and Mrs. Beverly Seibert. A slate of officers will be presented at the April meeting.

Reservations were taken for the Area Council awards dinner set for Feb. 27 at Granite City High School North and the date of the school picnic was announced as March 27 at Wilson Park.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Seibert, Mrs. Ramsey, Mrs. Thomason and Mrs. Pat Foote, third grade mothers.

Mrs. Wetton wins BPW speak-off

Mrs. Lois Wetton was named winner of the Phase II speak-off event, sponsored by the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club, in a contest taking place last week at the home of Mrs. Genevieve Grady, 3157 Myrtle Ave. Her topic was "Happiness."

Serving as judges were Mrs. Sylvia Wright, Mrs. Rosemary Baseden and Mrs. Rebecca Slate. The oratorical contest is part of the club's three-segment Individual Development Plan.

Mrs. Wetton will represent the local BPW group in advance competition on March 16 at the spring district meeting in Edwardsville.

The award winner serves as membership chairman and director of the Granite City BPW Club. She resides with her husband, Raymond, and daughter, Linda, at 3139 Princeton Drive.

Mrs. Wetton operates Lois' Fashion Hut at 4306 Nameoki Road. She has been employed in the retail sales field for the past 27 years.

Baptist youths to host dinner

The Youth Council of Calvary Baptist Church, 3000 Washington Ave., will host a "Red and White, Heart and Soul" banquet at 7:45 Saturday night at the church, the president, David Tripp, announced today.

A steak dinner will be served followed by entertainment provided by two singing groups, "Charity" from Calvary and "The Maranatha" singers of Suburban Baptist Church.

The banquet will conclude with an inspirational challenge from Chris Holloway. Other members of the council who will be present are Lisa Conner, vice-president; Cheryl Kindle, secretary and representatives, Greg Stafford, Debbie Phelps, Cheri Hilburn, Dave Hagopian, Carolyn Wilson, Don Slayter, Steve Conner and Nancy Nieceicki.

Group opposes bigger SIUE administration

The Faculty Organization on Collective Bargaining in a statement Tuesday opposed hiring practices at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville and urged reconsideration by the university's administration.

"Despite a freeze on faculty positions at SIUE, during December and January one administrator has been hired and two administrative positions have been advertised in the university."

"Such a pattern is bound to increase the wonder and concern of faculty members who are not in administrative positions during a time when the president of the university has termed the new budget a disaster," the FOCB statement said.

"The university in December hired Thomas Leffler as a special assistant to the president, salary $22,000."

"In a recent conference with Pres. John Rendleman, requested by the university's Faculty Organization for Collective Bargaining, he maintained Leffler was essential to the university's adequately carrying on the administrative functions of the university."

"During January, the following positions have been advertised:

Jan. 8—Faculty Arts Administrator, salary range $900 - $1,620.

Jan. 14—Acting Assistant Dean Graduate School, 75 per cent appointment, salary open.

"It has to be assumed that these positions are considered also as essential to the operation of the university."

"The impression to the faculty member must be that there exists a de facto policy to the effect that administrators are considered essential while the teaching faculty are considered expendable," the FOCB said.

"Unless some overwhelming need can be decisively demonstrated, we believe these positions and others contemplated should not be staffed. The freeze recommended by the University Senate and endorsed by the president should be equally applied to all positions."

"If these advertised positions are staffed by personnel from outside the university, those positions may have to be fired next year if disasters continue."

"Such hiring and firing is likely to be a disservice to all concerned."

"If the positions are filled by an internal transfer that moves teaching faculty into administrative tasks, then the freeze on the vacated faculty position takes effect. The university curriculum, then, would have to be reduced or else a faculty member would have to assume the burden of additional teaching."

"It is the shared belief of many faculty members that SIUE is greatly overweighed already to the administrative side. Any further creation of administrative positions or the failure to apply a freeze equally to administrative positions can only increase the apprehensiveness of the faculty."

"The Executive Council of the FOCB urges the university administration to reconsider these recent actions with all haste."

The statement was issued by George Henderson, president; Dickie Spurgeon, president elect; Henry Frisching, secretary; Dudley Curry, treasurer; and Barbara Lawrence, member-at-large.

Advisory unit on crime victims' compensation

Peter Bensinger, chief of Attorney General William J. Scott's Crime Compensation Division, yesterday announced the creation of an advisory committee to assist in improving policies and procedures for compensating victims of violent crimes.

He also announced the start of a new "extern" program that will involve initially Northwestern University, De Paul University and University of Chicago law students in the crime compensation work at no cost to the state.

Serving on Bensinger's advisory committee will be Marlin Johnson, vice president of Canteen Corp. and chairman of the Chicago Police Board; Dr. Norval Morris, co-director of the Center for Studies in Criminal Justice at the University of Chicago.

Fred Inbau, professor of law at Northwestern, Armita Y. Boswell, president of the League of Black Women and an associate professor at the University of Chicago, Edna Epstein, chief of the Sex Felony Division of the Cook County State's Attorney's office; and Archie Box, chairman of the board of Allstate Insurance Co.

The Court of Claims will be represented on the committee by one of its three judges. Bensinger will announce Donastate appointments to the advisory committee before the end of the month. He commented:

"In today's crime-ridden society, the forgotten participant, the victim, is the person who suffers most."

"The Crime Compensation Act program needs to be speeded up, made better known to the public, and streamlined administratively."

"The answer is not always more public employees, but turning to outside resources, universities, and public and private agencies whose expertise and interest in this field can make such a difference."

Bensinger said his new extern project is an example of the sort of help universities can supply to the program.

A DePaul law student already is at work, a Northwestern law student will start at the end of March, and a law student from the University of Chicago will be assigned this summer.

One improvement in the Crime Victims Compensation program already has been achieved, Bensinger said. Prior to his taking over, victims with claims of $1,000 or more had to wait for state legislative approval before being paid. Recently, the Court of Claims ruled that up to $999 of the larger claims can be paid immediately, without seeking legislative approval.

"Additionally," Bensinger said, "Attorney General Scott is having legislation introduced in the General Assembly which would establish a revolving fund in the state treasurer's office."

"Claims of $1,000 up to the $10,000 legal limit then could be paid immediately when approved by the Court of Claims, without having to go to the General Assembly for approval."

Bensinger said the Crime Victims Compensation program has made 34 awards to date — $26,493 already paid out and $58,721 awaiting legislative approval, for a total of $85,214.

Daylight time due again on Sunday, Feb. 23

Two months earlier than in previous years, Quad-Cityans will move their clocks ahead one hour on Feb. 23 to resume a daylight saving time schedule.

Officially, daylight time becomes effective at 2 a.m. on Sunday, Feb. 23, but Quad-Cityans can achieve the same effect by setting their clocks ahead one hour before retiring Saturday night.

In previous years daylight time was not resumed until the fourth Sunday in April, but the standard time period was shortened by federal legislation a year ago because of the energy crisis. Authorities maintained the extra hour of daylight conserved power.

GOLDEN FRIED SHRIMP DINNER EVERY DAY AT GRANTS—$1.58

REP. KOSINSKI Chicago Democrat files anticrime bills

By RANDY THOMAS

SPRINGFIELD — Public opinion swings like a pendulum, says state Rep. Roman Kosinski, D-Chicago.

And right now that pendulum has reached the point of outrage with rising crime rates and the related illegal use of firearms.

Reflecting what he views as a mandate from his constituents in the big city, Kosinski has dropped five bills into the legislative hopper which he hopes will curb the number of crimes committed with guns and perhaps save a few lives.

In private life Kosinski is a jeweler on Chicago's Northwest side. And over the years, he has been the victim of at least five armed bandits.

Kosinski maintains the best way to curb gun-related crime is to keep those convicted off the streets.

"The fact point to the conclusion that some people just can't be rehabilitated," he said. "I think it's time we face up to the facts."

For such persons, Kosinski prescribes what he calls the "three-time loser law" — mandatory life imprisonment for any person convicted three times of committing a felony with a firearm.

Next, the two term-House veteran, would eliminate plea bargaining for those accused of gun-related crimes. This would prohibit state's attorneys from reducing charges in exchange for a guilty plea to a less serious charge.

Another bill will outlaw the use or possession of sawed-off shotguns. They are already prohibited by the federal government, Kosinski said, but enforcement should be the rehowever, because the session was restricted by the leadership to fiscal matters.

High on the legislative priority list for the session appears to be strict limitations on the amount of money political candidates may spend on campaigns for state office.

Sen. James H. Donnewald, D-Breese, has introduced a bill that would limit spending by gubernatorial candidates to about $550,000 in the primary election and $850,000 in the general election.

The actual figures would be based on the number of registered voters. Candidates could spend 10 cents per voter in the primary and 15 cents per voter in the general election.

Legislative candidates would be limited to $16,000 in the primary and $27,000 in the general election.

The proposal has the full backing of the Senate majority leadership, including Democrat Leader Sen. Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, a close political ally of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley.

Other pending bills would:

- Change the state lottery law and require all lottery revenues to be spent on public education. Other bills call for a public policy vote on how lottery money should be spent and a study to determine what effect the lottery has on family life, organized crime and lower income persons.
- Provide stiff penalties for those convicted of staging cock fights to the death for gambling purposes.
- Outlaw legislative scholarships.
- Allow terminally ill patients to refuse medical treatment that is designed solely to sustain the life processes.
- Reduce the state income tax on individuals.
- Change the primary election date from the third Tuesday in March to the first Tuesday in June.
- Make it easier for tenants to break their leases on rented apartments.

responsibility of local law enforcement officials.

Kosinski noted that in the first nine months of 1974 there was a 9.6 per cent increase in forcible felonies with sawed-off shotguns which the user generally conceals effectively under a coat or jacket by means of a shoulder sling.

Kosinski's last two bills would provide stiffer penalties for those convicted of stealing firearms, regardless of the value, and require firearms training for all law enforcement officers hired after Oct. 31, 1975.

Rarely without a handgun while at work in his jewelry store, Kosinski disapproves of legislation designed to limit ownership of firearms. He says such a proposal has proved itself "legislatively unrealistic."

He also maintains that programs offering cash for those who voluntarily turn in firearms are expensive and don't work.

To date, the lawmaker says he has encountered no opposition to any of his proposals.

"Mr. John Q. Citizen is at the point of outrage and it's about time," he said.

Other pending bills that fit the law and order category include a proposal to beef up criminal penalties for those convicted of selling drugs and a measure to require persons accused of murder, kidnapping or treason to post 100 per cent of their bail before being released from custody. Now most defendants are released when 10 per cent of bail is posted.

Both bills were introduced this past session of the General Assembly but failed. The action should not be viewed as general legislative sentiment,

ILLINOIS' OUTDOOR HERITAGE

COCK-SPUR THORN
(Crataegus crus-galli)

A small tree growing to 20 feet, the cock-spur thorn has dark brown and scaly bark. It is a member of the hawthorn family and is distinguished by its leathery, shiny leaves. The flowers grow in clusters, each having five white petals, and appear in May and June. Though sometimes grown as an ornamental, this tree is generally found on wooded slopes and thickets, and occurs in most Illinois counties. The wood is heavy and brown in color; the leaves are alternate, rounded or short-pointed at the tip and up to four inches long. There is no recorded state record for this species.

BINGO! State leisure time taxes are rolling in

By TOM KACICH

SPRINGFIELD — More than 15 per cent of all state revenue came from taxes on cigarettes, liquor, gambling and bingo during fiscal 1974.

A record total of $307 million was collected, and it appears that the tax on the state lottery will make fiscal 1975 another record-setter.

This fiscal year runs from July 1 to June 30 of the following year in Illinois.

The cigarette tax, which does not include cigars or other tobacco products, brought in $171.6 million to the state. The 12 cent per package tax was up from the fiscal year 1973 total of $153 million.

Wagering on the horses jumped from the fiscal year 1973 level of $52 million to $56 million in 1974.

And apparently more grandmothers than ever took part in bingo games within the state because bingo tax receipts jumped to $5.2 million last year, up from $4 million in 1973.

The General Assembly legalized bingo in 1971, taxing the games at a rate of 10 per cent of the gross take.

However, fiscal year 1974 was an off-year for tax collections on liquor sales which remained at the same level as in fiscal 1973 — $74 million. Robert Alphin, director of the Department of Revenue, indicated this wasn't necessarily a sign that liquor consumption was down in Illinois.

"We've been monitoring the figures from the federal government and it seems that it's a general trend that during that period people drank more wine and beer than hard liquor," said Alphin.

He said the increase in the usage of the "pop wines" by young people may keep the tax levels down.

Hard liquor is taxed at the rate of $2 per gallon; beer at seven cents a gallon and wine ranges from 23 to 60 cents per gallon, depending on the alcoholic content.

Early estimates for fiscal year 1975 indicate the state can expect record revenue collection.

Alphin said there has been a 5 per cent increase in the amount from the cigarette tax through Dec. 31, 1974.

The liquor tax has shown an enormous increase — up 29 per cent from comparable six-month July 1 to Dec. 31 figures a year ago. Alphin said this might be due to the fact that Illinois has a lower liquor gallon tax than all the surrounding states and is getting out-of-state business.

Bingo tax receipts are up 26 per cent from a year ago already having contributed slightly over $3 million. And the state lottery, already having garnered $22 million in just five months through Dec. 31,

ELECTION LAW

New rules set for all Illinois campaigners

By RICHARD CRABB

SPRINGFIELD — A new election law in Illinois became effective this year.

The law, known as the Illinois Campaign Disclosure Act, became effective for state candidates Oct. 1, 1974, and as of Jan. 1, 1975, it applies to campaigns for every public office in the state.

The new law is administered by the Illinois State Board of Elections, assisted by county clerks.

For the first time all elections for public office are conducted under a single state election board with offices in Springfield and Chicago.

This board replaces the former Chicago Election Commission and all similar bodies throughout the state.

The new regulations do not apply until a candidate has received or spent (of his own funds) $1,000. Contributions in kind must be accounted for as well as cash contributions or loans of cash.

The new election machinery for the state was provided in special legislation passed by the Illinois General Assembly in 1973 in a direct response to the Paul Powell "shoe box" episode.

Upon the death of the late Secretary of State Powell, there was found in a closet of his Springfield hotel apartment more than a million dollars in cash.

The money was stacked in old boxes, some of them shoe boxes. It is believed that the money was a residue from earlier election campaign contributions. It was never possible for investigators to determine from whom the contributions came.

The new election regulations are designed to accomplish three objectives:

— Make available to the public a record of all campaign contributions for any candidate whose gifts amount to $1,000.

— Make public all campaign expenditures of candidates who spend more than $1,000.

— Provide in advance the name of one or more public charities to receive any funds that may remain after all campaign expenses have been paid.

In years, or parts thereof, when there is no election for a candidate, but two reports on contributions and expenditures have to be filed.

They are for two reporting periods that extend from Jan. 1 to June 30 and from July 1 to Dec. 31. These reports are due 30 days after the periods.

July 31 and Jan. 31. In election years three additional reports on campaign contributions are required. A special report on campaign contributions is due for the "reporting period" up to 30 days before the election. This report must be filed with either the State Board of Elections or the county clerk not later than 15 days before the election.

— In that final 30-day period before the election, any contribution of $500 or more must be reported to the state board or the county clerk within two working days following the date the contribution was received.

A special report on contributions is required for the "reporting period" up to 60 days after the election. This report is due 90 days following the election.

When there are general elections the first week in November this special "90-days-after-report" and the regular report for the reporting period will be the same and will be filed not later than Jan. 31.

But for elections held earlier in the year a special report will be needed.

For example, the municipal primary elections will be held in February. The special "90-days-after-report" will have to be filed with the county clerk not later than 90 days after the election.

The Illinois Campaign Disclosure Act provides specific guidelines for making these reports of campaign contributions and expenditures.

ILLINOIS' OUTDOOR HERITAGE

SASSAFRAS (Sassafras albidum)

The sassafras tree is sometimes called the white or red sassafras, and is a small to moderate-sized tree, growing up to 40 feet. The bark is greenish-gray when young, darkening when older. Twigs are slender, aromatic and green. Each flower is about one-third in. long and greenish-yellow. The fruits are dark blue berries about one-third in. long in deep red cups, and are eaten in early fall by deer, turkey and many species of birds. The wood is orange-brown and used for fence posts, boat building, cooperage and crating. The roots are strongly aromatic and are used in making tea. Sassafras oil, also derived from the roots, is used in soaps, perfumes, and for flavoring drugs, medicines and candies. Roadsides, old fields and woods are where this species is primarily found, and it is one of the first trees to grow on abandoned agricultural land. It makes a good shade tree, is free of insect pests and sometimes is planted as an ornamental. The tree is distinguished by its distinctly-shaped leaves and green twigs. Found generally in southern Illinois, the largest known specimen in Illinois is found in Jackson County and has a circumference of 15 ft. 2 in.

Surratt Home restoration recalls assassin's flight

By LESTER BELL

WASHINGTON — When John Wilkes Booth played out one of America's maddest scenes in Ford's Theater 110 years ago the 26-year-old crazed actor fled on a trail of controversy.

Booth's first stop, in Maryland after shooting President Abraham Lincoln, that April night in 1865, sent Mary E. Surratt to the gallows as a conspirator. The Marylanders of the community where she had lived in southern Prince George's County to this day believe Mrs. Surratt is the most slandered woman in our history.

Now the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission is restoring the Surratt House, also known as the Surratt Tavern, for the 110th anniversary of Lincoln's assassination, and the people of the area want to restore Mrs. Surratt's good name as well.

It was on April 14, 1865, when one lead ball from Booth's brass derringer fatally wounded Lincoln, sitting in the presidential box at Ford's. Booth leaped from the box, snagged his spur in a draped flag and hit the stage with a crash that broke his left shinbone. Booth hobbled to the alley backstage and struggled into the saddle of his getaway horse. He sent the bay mare clattering over cobblestones to the Navy Yard bridge where he talked his way past a sergeant on guard and raced across the Anacostia River into southern Maryland.

Booth's first halt that night was Surratt's Tavern in Surrattsville for whiskey to dull his pain and a carbine and binoculars. Booth's tortured flight was to end 11 days later, the morning of April 26, in King George's County, Virginia, where the actor died in a barn, either killed by a federal trooper or a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

The assassin's trail can be retraced today from the restored Ford's Theater to Surratt's Tavern and the seven intermediate points before he reached the barn on Richard Garrett's farm.

Surratt's Tavern has weathered more than a century on a little rise in Prince George's County where John E. Surratt, Sr., postmaster and innkeeper, and his wife, Mary E. Surratt, oversaw their corn and tobacco acreage. A farmhouse typical of its time and place, the two-story frame dwelling stood boarded up in recent years, host only to the wind moaning through the cracks.

Lawrence Manuel, the Park and Planning Commission's Property Manager, is project manager for the restoration. He says the Surratt Home has been meticulously documented by professional researchers for the restoration.

"This will be a true restoration of the house, a duplicate as nearly as possible to the way it was first built," Manuel said in an interview.

"We are trying for an opening of April 14, the night Booth stopped there. If the contractor keeps his schedule, I think we can make it."

Over the years, Manuel confirms, the people of the Clinton area, called Surrattsville until shortly after the Lincoln assassination, have tried to clear the name of Mary Surratt of any part in the conspiracy.

Surratt's House was at the crossroads of the county. It was a post office, tavern and polling place, the political hub of the entire election district. This, too, bore the Surratt name.

Witnessed, Mary E. Surratt leased the place and moved to Washington to operate a boardinghouse. The Lincoln conspirators, according to the trial that sent four to the hangman, met with Booth at her boardinghouse.

Thomas S. Gwynn Jr., whose name goes back 200 years "right in this area," says there is "no question that Mary Surratt's name is maligned."

Gwynn is chairman for the Surratt House Restoration Committee.

"I was born right across the road from that house," says the former schoolteacher, now banker. "My grandfather's house stood a short distance away. He was there when Union troops came for Booth."

"Yes," he too confirmed in an interview, "we want to help correct the bad name that has been given to Mary Surratt."

Gwynn believes Mrs. Surratt, the first and only woman tried and hanged by a military court on circumstantial evidence, "he says," "Two years later a regular court tried her son on the same conspiracy charge and he was acquitted." (John Surratt Jr., who had fled to Egypt and was returned, was actually freed by a hung jury, a judge took pains to point out here some time ago.)

Manuel says the commission's documentation of the Surratt Place is so complete it not only tells what the house looked like in 1865 but how and why John and Mary Surratt came to the now historical crossroads of Clinton in southern Maryland.

Public hearings called on community development plan

A public hearing on the proposed Madison County Community Development Program — including improvements to cost $222,000 in the Quad-Cities — will be held Wednesday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the County Board Room at the courthouse in Edwardsville.

The hearing was called Tuesday following a meeting of the Madison County Community Development Committee at Edwardsville to finalize the county plan which will include development projects proposed by five separate districts, and projects planned as county-sponsored projects. The county expects an allocation of approximately $1 million for 1975 to finance projects developed over three years. Additional funds will be allocated in 1976 and 1977. Of this amount, 20 per cent was set aside to finance projects sponsored by the county.

In its meeting Tuesday, the county committee approved three "discretionary" projects sponsored by the county. These include $15,000 for a ramp for handicapped at the Edwardsville courthouse, $65,000 for a countywide housing rehabilitation program permitting low-interest loans for home improvements; $6,612 for a roadway identification system, and $7,600 for purchase of a truck to collect refuse along county roadways.

The county committee also approved a District Two (Quad-Cities) project, to be financed out of the 20 per cent discretionary fund, for employment of elderly persons in public service jobs. The action approved $7,000 as the Quad-City share of the program which is directed by Belleville Area College.

All projects to be funded from the 20 per cent account will cost a total of $191,142. Another $40,000 will be set aside from this fund for administration costs.

The overall county program, including district projects, will total $984,000.

After the program is considered at the Feb. 18 public hearing, the application to the Housing and Urban Development Agency for the allocations will be certified to the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council.

A second public hearing will be held March 5, also at 7:30 p.m. in the courthouse, after which the applications will be filed with HUD.

RETAILERS' ANNUAL DINNER last night at the Sunset Hills Holiday Inn featured talks by, from left, Homer Huber, who was re-elected president of the Associated Retailers and Civic Association, Inc.; Reinagle, master of ceremonies, and Jack Buck, anchorman for broadcasts of Cardinal baseball games, who was the main speaker for the evening. Nearly 200 persons attended the event which marked the 67th year for the retailers' group.

Revival at Central Methodist

The Central Free Methodist Church, now located at a new site 4150 South St., at the end of Lake Street near Highway 111, will host a series of revival services beginning Sunday and continuing through Feb. 23, according to the Rev. Eugene Stevenson, pastor.

The Rev. F. H. Current of Urbana, Ill., will be the guest speaker at the morning worship services Sunday and at each of the evening services Monday through Friday at 7 o'clock. He also will conduct programs at both the morning and evening services on Feb. 23.

A pastor and evangelist, Rev. Current is an elder in the Wabash Conference where he has pastored for many years, and travels as an evangelist for the church.

Our Little Miss contest March 16

The "Our Little Miss Pageant" for area girls will take place at 1:30 p.m. March 16 at the VFW Hall in Edwardsville.

Prospective candidates may register for the pageant or obtain information from Miss Barbara Brandt, Rte. 2, Edwardsville, or by calling 656-4406.

Miss Brandt, sponsor of this year's pageant, said girls between the ages of 7 and 12 years will be expected to perform a talent and model a short party dress and sportswear.

Younger contestants, 3 to 6 years, are required only to model a party frock and casual sportswear in order to compete.

Fire damages shed

A fire in a shed on the M. H. Wolf Contracting Co. property at 22nd and Adams streets, at 11:30 p.m. Monday caused about $400 damage to the shed.

A light bulb used to heat the building was believed to have raised the temperature too high and started the fire.

Firemen were called back to the scene at 7:55 a.m. Tuesday as the fire rekindled. It was extinguished without causing additional damage.

Fire Monday also caused about $50 damage at the home of Thomas Hunt, 2132 Bryan Ave., when a natural gas-burning space heater boiler motor overheated. Firemen were there 12 minutes.

BORN TO LEARN Baby needs little practice to speak

By JUNE GALLAGHER

Humans are the only creatures who can speak. They alone are programmed to do so. And they learn it completely with very little practice before the age of three. Parents wishing to help them in the process can purchase "Children's Speech" by Robert Hopper and Rita C. Naremore or "Teach Your Child to Talk" (CEBCO Publ.).

They'll learn that while dogs can express emotion by wagging their tails at their masters and bees can do a "dance of the bees" to describe where the latest nectar find is, and birds can weave a small segment of song into a larger one, only humans can do all three and produce speech.

Yet the child has learned most of the rules of syntax (sentence structure) by 18 months.

He actually lies in the errors he makes. He will say, "I runned" showing his grasp of the use of "ed" to form the past tense.

Later, when he learns the finer points (from his speech models — usually his mother), he will correct it to "I ran."

First he comprehends the general rule, then the exceptions.

Children need little speech practice. Those with deaf and dumb parents still pick up speech easily when exposed to it. Children who have had throat operations skip the missing stage of learning and move on to the next one.

A child's speech develops along a time table, say Hopper and Naremore. Language develops alongside the biological functions.

At about four months, he will coo at approximately the same time he learns to hold up his head; from six to nine months, he will babble repeating consonant-vowel combinations like "ma ma" and "da da;" from 9 to 12 months, he will say his first words when he stands, creeps and walks sideways; and somewhere between 18 to 21 months, his vocabulary will be from 20 to 200 words and he will walk, throw a ball and go downstairs backwards.

While we are genetically programmed to speak, we still need help in learning the language of our culture.

The sounds of his own particular culture will be reinforced by the baby's mother.

The baby must still be taught that talking is something he wants to do. He needs someone to make fuss over his every accomplishment. He needs someone there who repeats his early vocal sounds and experiments correctly.

Linguists say the baby carries the culture of his country through speech. They give this story as an example: If all the babies of England were inexplicably taken to France, they would learn French and the English language would soon die out in England.

Thus heredity and environment are "two sides of the same coin" (Hopper and Naremore). They are allies, not enemies and while the child is born to speak, his parents will influence what and how much he learns.

"The things you say to your baby will influence how he thinks about himself. He will learn to like himself better if you talk to him with a soothing voice that lets him know that he is part of a secure and loving home."

"Hold him close and show that you enjoy being with him. Teach him that you and the rest of the family are fun to be with. Help him to learn to like other people." ("Teach Your Child to Talk")

Hartigan toastmaster for dinner honoring State Sen. Vadalabene

LI. Gov. Neil F. Hartigan has agreed to serve as master of ceremonies for the Sam M. Vadalabene appreciation dinner March 14. Publicity Chairman Lucien B. Ringering announced today.

"Getting a man of the stature of Neil Hartigan is a good indication of the esteem in which Senator Sam is held by his fellow public servants in Springfield," Ringering said. "As lieutenant governor, Hartigan has compiled an enviable record, particularly in his efforts to secure the metropolitan airport for Illinois and in his continuing work on behalf of our senior citizens."

"In obtaining his services, I know that we will insure that everyone who attends the dinner will have an enjoyable time."

"Other distinguished guests from all over the state have been invited, and we expect to have an outstanding head table to show how much respect

Senator Sam has earned over his long and dedicated legislative career.

"We know all citizens of the 6th District will want to be with us on the evening of March 14 to hear LI. Gov. Hartigan, the other distinguished guests, and, most of all, to honor Sam for all his hard work on our behalf."

"Even in these times of inflation, we have managed to hold the ticket price to $5, with tables of eight available to those who want to join with their friends and make it a real party."

The appreciation dinner will be held in the Meridian Ballroom of the University Center at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville at 7:30 p.m. on March 14.

Ticket orders are to be sent to P. O. Box 304, Edwardsville, Ill. 62025. Albert Cassens is chairman and Roger Hartung treasurer of the committee.

E. H. Shenandoah, 75, dies

Emmanuel H. Shenandoah, 75, of 2736 Hampton, St. Louis, a former Granite City resident, died at his home Wednesday morning.

He was born in Oneida, Wis., and resided here 20 years, moving to St. Louis four years ago.

Mr. Shenandoah was a retired civil service employee and a member of St. Bartholomew Episcopal Church in Granite City, he also belonged to the 6th Infantry Association.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martha (Lunsford) Shenandoah.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Monday at a St. Louis funeral home with the Rev. Wilbur Lear officiating. Burial will be in the National Cemetery, Jefferson Barracks, Mo.

Hospital union vote is delayed

An election on a choice of union representation at St. Elizabeth Hospital scheduled Wednesday was postponed until Wednesday, Feb. 26.

The delay in balloting resulted from a National Labor Relations Board ruling early this month providing that dietary employees should be included with other hospital employees in a single ballot.

The election was ordered by the NLRB in response to the Service for the Employees Union Local 50 and by Teamsters Union Local 525. Originally, Local 50 sought representation of all hospital employees, while the Teamsters local sought representation of all but dietary employees.

Under the new NLRB ruling, dietary employees now will be included in the vote of both unions. Employees will vote on three proposals: choice of Local 50 as the bargaining agent, choice of the Teamsters Union, or a preference for no union at all. Approximately 300 employees are involved in all departments.

A majority of 51 per cent is required to carry any one of the three propositions.

Also indicted in the case was James J. Kage of Belleville, charged with involvement in a policy game and two counts of using interstate facilities to conduct an illegal gambling business.

Others charged with involvement in the policy game were Derender L. Watts, Earl Harris, Elloise Reese and Rosa M. Powell, all of East St. Louis. Garrett faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

Lyndall T. Moore, 42, of 2630 Edwards St., Venice, was charged with intoxication and two counts of assault after he allegedly entered the home of Vickie Diday of the 400 block of Olive and choked and struck her and pulled her hair.

Officers said he resisted arrest and had to be restrained. They took him to St. Elizabeth Hospital where six sutures were administered to close a wound to the top of his head. He was returned to police custody and was taken to the Granite City jail.

One assault charge stemmed from the alleged assault on the woman and other was from an approach he was said to have made against police, officers said.

Economic woes face Illinois and its state government

By KEN WATSON
Press-Record
Springfield Bureau
The economic honeymoon is over in Illinois.

This is the cruel fact of life that must be faced by Gov. Dan Walker and the 70th Illinois General Assembly as the legislature buckles down to five months of lawmaking. This could well be the most critical legislative session since the days of the Great Depression in the early 1930s.

Illinois has probably been as little affected as any state by the relatively mild recessions that have occurred since World War II. A highly diversified economy has taken the occasional business slowdown in stride.

In the 1930s, Illinois was hit especially hard by the depression because coal mining was then a leading industry in the state and heavy unemployment in the mines caused suffering for thousands of families.

But in the post-World War II era Illinois, has enjoyed a steady road of prosperity.

Unemployment in this state has been consistently below the national average, rarely going much above three per cent.

However, things are changing. The U. S. Labor Department has reported that Illinois ranked second in the filing of initial claims for unemployment insurance benefits for the week ending Jan. 25.

Illinois increases of 34,000 which boosted the state total of claimants to 295,600, are second only to Michigan, which led with 42,100 new claims to a new total of 346,000.

The sagging auto industry is responsible for Michigan's showing. Adding to Illinois' economic gloom was another report by the Bureau of Unemployment Security at Chicago which showed that the number of new claimants for unemployment compensation in Cook and DuPage Counties, the two most populous counties in Illinois, nearly doubled in mid-January from the same period last year.

Such heavily industrialized areas as Rock Island, Moline, Rockford and Decatur have been hard hit by layoffs.

The recession is certain to have a direct and immediate effect on the deliberations of the legislature. Storm signals are already flying from various sectors of the economic front.

The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce has warned that because of the slackening pace of business, state tax revenues are beginning to weaken, interrupting five years of healthy growth. These include the two basic sources, the sales tax and the income tax, both directly linked to business fluctuations.

The Chamber warned that "it is already apparent there will be no room in the governor's next budget for new programs unless substantial cuts in present state spending are made."

It suggests that some severe cuts be made in current state programs, and warns that "if such cuts are not made, a tax increase will become necessary within the next fiscal year."

Although politicians like to talk about tax cuts, many students and observers of state government agree with the Chamber's view.

State Federation of Labor AFL-CIO, has proposed a recession-induced legislative program estimated to cost hundreds of millions of dollars.

Organized labor's legislative clout being as great as it is, it is possible that much of the program will be enacted into law.

As unemployment increases in the state, one can expect mass demonstrations by idled workers on the Statehouse lawn and in the legislative chambers, similar to those held and planned for Washington.

Should emphasis be on cutting

state spending and thereby fighting continuing inflation, or should it be placed on creating more jobs for the unemployed?

New date for federal employment examination

The Professional and Administrative Career Examination (PACE) which was to be given at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville Feb. 28 will be given at the university March 15. PACE is the federal examination which replaced the old Federal Service Entrance Examination.

To be eligible to take the examination, students must mail application forms to the St. Louis regional office of the Civil Service Commission so that they are received no later than Feb. 20.

The application forms may be obtained from the University Placement Services Office at SIUE.

Upon receipt of the application by the St. Louis office, an admission ticket and other forms will be mailed to the applicant.

Anyone who misses the PACE test and would still like to take it will be able to do so in May, according to David Van Horn, director of SIUE Placement Services.

Madison Junior Service aids family

The Madison Junior Service Club came to the aid of a local family who lost most of their possessions in a recent fire by providing clothing and bedding items for six young children.

"We offered the help, but it is the generosity of the public in supporting our various projects which enabled us to give this aid," Mrs. Shirley Clark, president, said this week.

The young women's club purchased clothing, shoes and undergarments for the children of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Fisher, whose second floor apartment at 3274 Madison Avenue, Madison, was gutted by fire on the morning of Jan. 14.

The blaze, which started in the kitchen area, resulted in an estimated loss of $5,000 to the contents and $5,000 damage to the building. The family's pet dog died in the fire.

The Fishers have five boys and one girl. The children are 10, 9, 8, 6, 4 and 3 years old.

Mrs. Clark said the Salvation Army gave immediate help to the family. "One of our members who works for the Salvation Army said additional aid was urgently needed, especially clothing for the youngsters," she said.

Club members also collected bedding and some good used clothing items for the Fisher family, the service club officer explained.

"Frequently we publicize our fund raising activities and receive good support from the public. We believe people that help us through these efforts should know how we help others with their contributions," Mrs. Clark stated.

The Madison club's primary charitable project involves assistance to school children with vision problems.

Additionally, however, the Madison Junior Service Club has spearheaded the annual March of Dimes fund raising drive in that community.

This year, the club concentrated most of its efforts on the March of Dimes' behalf at a roadblock project and in distributing canisters at business firms.

A total of $625 was collected by the group in a three-hour roadblock on Madison Avenue, Mrs. Clark advised. Members of the Madison Volunteer Fire Department helped the club solicit donations from passing motorists.

In appreciation of their assistance, Junior Service club hosted a dinner for the Madison firefighters.

About 90 members and guests also attended a club-sponsored "Luncheon is Served" and fashion show in January, the officer said.

Proceeds from the event helped the club provide assistance to the Fisher family, Mrs. Clark pointed out.

Junior Service members and their daughters served as models in the style show, which was presented by Marjorie's House of Fashion Mrs. Marilyn Lumsford was the show commentator.

"We really appreciate the public's support in the past and hope we can continue to aid those needing help in our community," Mrs. Clark said.

Special education panel tonight

A panel discussion on work study programs and the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation will be featured at a meeting of the Parents of Special Education at 7 p.m. today at Madison High School, Sixth and Parish streets.

Mrs. Kathryn Hahne, president, said guest speakers will be Don Shaffner, work study coordinator, and Norma Lesko, teacher coordinator, both from Granite City School District 9; Lillie Valley, Madison School District 12 teacher coordinator; and Jack Strader and Dave Parrish, counselors from the state Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Mrs. Hahne reported a skating party will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. Monday at the Star-dust Rink in Pontoon Beach. Admission is 50 cents per child.

125 honor Mrs. Coffay at retirement dinner

Mrs. Marie Coffay, who will retire in June from the Granite City School District, was honored at an early retirement surprise party last week at Charlie's Restaurant.

More than 125 secretaries, matrons and cafeteria workers employed in the Granite City schools attended the festive event.

The party also served to mark the honoree's 65th birthday celebration.

Mrs. Coffay began working for the Granite City School District in 1956, starting initially in the cafeteria at Central School and transferring the following year to a secretarial position.

She was employed as secretary to Mrs. Alma Irvin.

Mrs. Shirley Brown of Grigsby Junior High School served as mistress of ceremonies, with Mrs. Henrietta Hinson of Coolidge Junior High School and Mrs. Wanda Pushe of Marshall School in charge of entertainment. The three were responsible for arranging the surprise event.

Brief glimpses into past experiences and events involving the guest of honor were recalled by Mrs. Irvin; Frieda Andrews, president of the Granite City Educational Secretaries Association and Mrs. Myra Grote representing the school matrons.

Mrs. Virginia Owens from North High School cafeteria presented Mrs. Coffay with a birthday cake she baked and decorated. Mrs. Carla Ashmore, the honoree's daughter, also spoke briefly.

Mrs. Coffay was presented a cherrywood credenza by her co-workers. She also received a floral centerpiece and a special book to be filled with the signatures of friends prior to her official retirement date.

Representatives from the secretarial and cafeteria staffs at the following school buildings were in attendance:

Granite City High School South and North; Coolidge, Grigsby and Prather junior high schools; Emerson, Frohardt, Johnson, Lake, Logan, McKinley, Maryville, Mitchell, Nameoki, Niedringhaus, Parkview, Stallings, Washington and Webster.

Also honoring Mrs. Coffay were staff members from the Granite City Board of Education offices and Special Education office.

GC club aids Honduras

The National Council of State Garden Clubs in its World Gardening project has called upon the federated garden clubs to contribute to the rehabilitation of Honduras, struck recently by a hurricane. Cloverview Garden Club of Granite City has made a donation to help supply seeds and hand tools to the stricken country. Mrs. William Bradley, president, reported. Two affiliated garden clubs in Honduras are working to help refugees develop their agricultural activities, she said. At a meeting held Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Richard Branding, 2439 Lynch Ave., a dessert luncheon was served to Cloverview members, Medames Bradley, Kenneth Brokaw, Charles Gandoria, John Jenkins, John Lentz, Robert McCauley, Joseph Ochso, B. C. O'Neill, Fred Orr and Leo Roman. Mrs. Eldon Meikamp has renewed her membership in the club after an absence of several years, it was reported.

A club contribution to the Abraham Lincoln Memorial Garden and Nature Center was acknowledged by letter, and Miss Sheryl Smith of the Colonial Haven Nursing Home staff expressed appreciation for a Valentine arrangement of red and white calico flowers in a milk glass container, made by Mrs. O'Neill and Mrs. Knapp, which was donated to the home. The group's installation party will take place March 11 at the Carriage House in St. Louis. Following an 11:30 a.m. luncheon, a tour of the Chateau-DeMentil House, an historic mansion, is arranged. Mrs. Gandoria, chairman, announced. Mrs. Roman will serve as installing officer. Mrs. Knapp gave a program on ornithology, dealing with the humming bird. Members were asked for program suggestions for the coming year. Mrs. Charles Kohl of the Gardenaires is heading a steering committee for gardening groups in the Granite City area which volunteer to help enhance the entrance to the Madison County Nature Trail, Mrs. Orr reported.

Ideas for an attractive rustic design at the Lake Drive location should be submitted for approval to Louis Whitsell at the Namekoi Township office, she added.

Mrs. Bradley was asked to arrange the March program.

58'ers honor adult leader

The 58'ers 4-H Club met at St. John United Church of Christ and heard a talk by Laura Dyer on "Sewing Equipment." Also speaking were Debbie Aerne on "Winding Yarn," Lisa Scannell on "Stitchery" and Helen Goeller on "Ceramics."

Mary Jo Welle demonstrated making broovies. President Susan Sigite conducted the meeting and the pledges were led by Laura Dyer and Janet Scannell. Mrs. Alyce Sigite, an adult leader, was honored on her birthday, and the secretary, Dina Long, read a thank you note from Mrs. Harriet Bunselmeier.

Games were planned by Laura Dyer, Tracey Johnson and Dina Long and refreshments were served by Patty Basarich, Lisa Scannell and Laura Jenness.

Others present were Karen Spencer, Eadie Schillinger, Cynthia Goeller, Mary Ann Welle, Debbie Reading and Denise Reading. At the March 6 meetings talks will be given by Shannon Bushue, Cherry Medric, Michelle Jenness and Nancy Niciodol. Demonstrations are to be presented by Laura Dyer, Mary Ann Welle, Debbie Reading and Mary Boyer.

Hilltoppers plan potluck in March

The Rev. Carl Eschenbrenner gave a talk on the customs of people in Biblical times at Tuesday's meeting of the St. John Hilltoppers. Carl Huenken, president, was in charge of the 1 p.m. meeting at St. John United Church of Christ. Members sang two hymns to open the session and the Rev. Eschenbrenner offered prayer.

Officers gave reports and plans for a potluck luncheon at the March meeting were announced. Mrs. Ora Downing, a member, was reported in hospital.

Mrs. Clara Knipping read several poems and refreshments were served by members observing their birthdays in February.

St. Louis Area Authority chart shows Lambert capacity is likely to be increased only slightly Note: All "demand" and "capacity" figures in this diagram are from the Parsons Master Plan for Lambert.

The "capacity" figures assume the use of new technologies, some of which are not even now in research and development stage.

The "demand" figures assume a slow growth of aviation and a stepped-up use of big, wide-body jets.

Vegetable gardening school due at Farm Bureau Feb. 21

By RON CORNWELL

U of I Extension Adviser Madison County homeowners will have an opportunity to receive the latest information on gardening Friday, Feb. 21 at a Vegetable Gardening School. The school will begin at 9:30 a.m. and continue to 11:30 a.m. in the Farm Bureau Building auditorium, 900 Hillsboro, Edwardsville.

The program will cover the latest information in the area of a garden. Which varieties should I plant this spring? How far apart should I plant various vegetables? How much fertilizer should I use? What about organic gardening? These are just some of the questions that will be discussed at the gardening program.

Chris Doll, area adviser in fruits and vegetables with the University of Illinois, will be the speaker. Additional information may be obtained at the Cooperative Extension office in Edwardsville.

Madison County beef producers will have an opportunity to attend a beef cow-calf tour Thursday, Feb. 20. The tour will start at 12:30 p.m. on the Erich Kloepper farm which is located four miles northeast of Red Bud in Monroe County.

Gary Ricketts, University of Illinois beef cow specialist, will be the discussion leader on the tour. The second stop on the tour will be on the Wilbert Senses farm in Monroe County.

Foundation seed of a new variety of soybeans, named Woodworth, will be allocated to certified seed producers for planting this spring. Woodworth is from the same original cross as Williams. However, it is a few days earlier than Williams, or about the same maturity as Wayne.

It has all the other physical characteristics of Williams and appears to be a promising variety in the near future. Woodworth will be in the county variety plots this coming spring.

The University of Illinois Dixon Springs Agricultural Center has 78 yearling ewes, born in February and March 1974, that are for sale as replacement ewes. These ewes are well grown and some are three-quarter blood Suffolk and one-quarter Targhee, and others are one-quarter Finnish Landrace, one-half Suffolk, and one-quarter Targhee. They have been exposed to good quality Suffolk rams for 21 days for April lambing.

The University would like to sell these to someone who would furnish some lambing data to the researchers during the 1975 lambing season. The ewes are for sale now and should be purchased if possible by Feb. 15th. Interested persons may contact Mike Wallace or J. M. Lewis at the center or call (618) 695-2441.

More dairy and beef operators are switching to urea as the sole protein source in their animals' feed rations. Urea supplements are often more economical and convenient than other protein sources. But they are potentially toxic and even deadly when mismanaged. Animals tolerate more urea after adapting first to small amounts. Cattleman must gradually raise the urea level since it takes about three weeks for cattle to adapt. In addition, if animals are taken off urea—even for just a few days—they need readaptation before they are again fed full urea rations.

Research shows that feeding 30 gm. of urea per 50 kg. of body weight produces toxicity and death in non-adapted animals. But animals receiving urea for several months require 50 gm. of urea per 50 kg. of body weight before toxicity and death result.

Urea toxicity is generally characterized by muscle tremors, increased salivation, lack of muscular coordination, tetany and death. Treatment for animals showing toxic symptoms is usually one to two gallons of a 5-per cent solution of acetic acid applied either by stomach tube or drench. The same dosage of common vinegar will work about as well.

Below are guidelines on feeding urea:

Urea should not exceed 1 per cent of total dry matter in the entire ration or 1.5 per cent of the concentrate portion.

Don't use high urea levels unless the ration also contains high grain levels.

Feed no more than one-half pound of urea daily per dairy animal, or one-fourth pound of urea daily per beef animal.

Don't mix urea and raw soybeans. The combination releases excessive ammonia. This makes the mixture unpalatable.

Urea-supplemented rations should be mixed well to prevent ingredient separation. Determining the amount of urea to use in your rations is easy. Ten pounds of urea forms 28 pounds of crude protein in the rumen. Divide the per cent of total protein that urea will furnish by 2.81. This gives the pounds of urea per 100 pounds of supplement.

No real significance to Feb. 22 as planting date

Area Gardening Adviser

Historically, Washington's birthday has been a benchmark date for the first sowing of lettuce and radishes in the garden. Since this date is now the third Monday of February, it changes each year and Feb. 22 has no special significance.

There was no apparent secret to the associating of gardening and Washington's birthday except that it is about as early as you can sow seed in this area. And earliness is important for cool season crops such as lettuce and radishes. However, in many years sowing in mid-March will be just as productive.

If the soil is workable on Washington's birthday, go ahead and garden. If it is frozen or too wet, wait until it dries enough to prepare a good seedbed.

Strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, blueberries, gooseberries, currants, and grapes are small fruits that can be grown in your back yard. They are called small fruits because the plants are smaller than the tree fruits. How well you grow them determines if they are "small-fruited" or "large fruited."

Small fruits are adapted to backyards because they require less space and bear earlier than tree fruits. They also are easier to plant and renew. However, many of them are specific in their adaptation because of small root systems and light requirements. Thus, the right variety and good planting stock are very important.

The strawberry is the most widely planted and most desirable of the small fruits. A large number of varieties are listed in most nursery catalogs. Many will do well in this area, but there are some that grow and yield more and better fruits.

For this section of Illinois, the following varieties have more or less proven themselves over the years. In order of ripening, these are: Sunrise, Midway, Pocahontas, Surecrop, Red Chief, Armore, and Tennessee Beauty. Of these, Sunrise, Midway, Surecrop, and Red Chief possess some resistance to red stele disease which may be a problem in old planting sites.

For tops in flavor, plant Fairfax or Fairway. Home gardeners are encouraged to try a few plants of these or other varieties that sound good to them.

If an overbearing variety is planted, it could be Ogallala or Geneva. Others are usually less productive.

Raspberries come in many colors, being available in black, red, purple, and yellow. Puppies are a cross between the black and reds. Their growth habit is similar to the blackberries, but they are very vigorous and require more space per plant. The red and yellows multiply by root cuttings and are noted for the many sucker plants they produce.

Varities that should perform well in this area are Allen and Bristol (black), Clyde (purple), Fallgold (yellow), and Latham, September, Southland and Heritage (red). Fallgold, September, Southland and Heritage are fall-bearing and do well here.

Blackberries and dewberries are related. Dewberries are trailing blackberries. The named varieties of these fruits are much larger and more productive than the wild kinds. Most of the dewberry varieties sold by nurseries are satisfactory if properly cared for.

The best of the blackberries are Darrow and Raven. Worthy of trial are the new thornless varieties Thornfree, Dirksen, and Black Satin. These don't quite have the quality of the common blackberry, but they are productive and nice to pick. They need a stake, fence, or trellis for support.

Blueberries can be grown if they have an acid soil and adequate moisture. If these requirements are met, Bluegray, Collins, Coville, Herbert or Jersey varieties should do well. Blueberries can be grown in partial shade and can impart beautiful fall color to the landscape.

The number of varieties of Gooseberries and currants is small, and most nurseries sell only one or two kinds. Welcome or Pixwell gooseberry and Red Lake for Wilder currant should be acceptable.

Grapes may be planted by a fence or an arbor and easily fit into the landscape plan. One or two plants of a variety is usually sufficient for fresh eating, but more are needed for processing. Mature plants should yield 10 to 20 pecks. A wide range of colors and flavors are available, but the leading varieties are Buffalo, Concord, Stouphen (Blue), Interlaken Seedless, Portland (White), and Delaware (Red).

Most of these varieties are listed in "Growing Small Fruits in the Home Garden," C-855 of the University of Illinois College of Agriculture. And, it also gives instructions on the planting and care of small fruit plants. A copy of this publication can be obtained from your County Agriculture Extension Adviser.

Budget is assailed as being built on a 'house of cards'

President Gerald Ford's record peacetime budget deficit—although a big deficit estimate had been reported for some time—has Illinoisans in Congress reeling this week.

The reaction to the predicted $32 billion to $70 billion in deficit financing has been universally unfavorable.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said the administration budget for fiscal 1976 "holds no surprises" but simply "confirms the grim forecasts of record-breaking deficits, severe unemployment and weak business activity set forth in the President's message to Congress in January."

Percy voiced "deep concern" over the "extraordinary projected deficits of $35 billion for fiscal year 1975 and $62 billion for fiscal year 1976" because they "are built on a fragile house of cards."

President Ford makes "highly unrealistic" assumptions if he believes Congress will cut $17 billion in spending already enacted, including $7 billion in Social Security increases, or that Congress will approve $8 billion more for defense plus "significant amounts" proposed for foreign arms and economic aid and credit, Percy said.

Sen. Percy predicted "substantially greater deficits" and "renewal of double-digit inflation unless very realistic actions are taken to increase revenues and to reduce spending."

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson, D-Ill., said "Pres. Ford's projected deficit" will send inflationary shock waves rippling throughout the economy, "impose unfair burdens on many...and do little to bring about economic recovery."

Stevenson was particularly critical of a "quick-fix" rebate which he said will increase the deficit while adding little to consumer spending, a 10 per cent increase for defense, the proposed 5 per cent bid on Social Security retirement increases, and higher food stamp costs, the latter subsequently rejected by Congress.

Sen. Stevenson made his usual comment on an administration budget: "Its 'priorities' are out of touch with economic and social needs."

Rep. Paul Findley, R-20th Dist., called the deficit "horrifying."

"It will be on the short side," he predicted, "and create new inflationary pressures."

Findley said he may resort to a practice he followed three years ago, although he conceded that it did no good. He offered amendments to every money bill to bring them down to a budget-balancing level.

"This got no place," he said, "but at least it brought attention to the deficits we are running."

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-14th Dist., said the big budget and deficit are "risky."

Erlenborn said he recognized that considerations other than fiscal entered the budget, and that Pres. Ford and his advisers tried to minimize the risks.

"I have personal knowledge that they have done their best to hold down spending," he said.

"Even so, I am apprehensive—and my misgivings are not lessened by the tendency of Congress to vote for more spending, nor by the tendency of the Executive Branch to overestimate receipts."

Rep. George M. O'Brien, R-17th Dist., called the budget and deficit "something to gloat at—and that's about as enthusiastic as I can get about it."

O'Brien, a new member of the House Armed Services Committee headed by Melvin Price of this district, said he hoped Congress would not use the Defense Department as a "whipping boy" and make seriously deep cuts in the military budget.

Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-6th Dist., is "philosophically opposed to deficit spending." But he recognizes the need to spend for the creation of jobs in the public sector and the stabilizing of the fixed-income of the elderly who are hurt most by inflation.

Hyde said in these and similar instances he will be "looking elsewhere to determine where Congress can make cuts."

Rep. Paul Simon, D-24th Dist., called the deficit a "long-range threat" that cannot be ignored.

Simon compared the President's spending priorities to those "we had during the Nixon years."

Cong. Simon said, for example, there is too much administration stress on more aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia, and not enough on food-stamp assistance to America's needy.

"On a topic of special concern to Southern Illinois, coal, I'm pleased the president has requested over $100 million more for coal research," Simon said.

"And I'm pleased that he is also asking more for research in mining health and safety."

5 vacancies for Illinoisans on Democratic National Committee

John P. Touhy, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has announced that the committee will select five Illinois Democrats to fill seats on the Democratic National Committee. Four new seats were created at December's Democratic Charter Conference, and one is a vacancy.

The five will be chosen at a meeting of the State Central Committee on Thursday, March 13.

"We invite all Democrats in Illinois to submit their names for selection to the Democratic National Committee," Touhy said.

"Women or men, upstate or downstate, rich or poor, young or old, of whatever color or religion or national background, we want all to participate," he emphasized.

"All a person has to do is to write me: John P. Touhy, 104 N. 4th St., Springfield, Ill. 62701, stating the person's name and address, that the person is an Illinois resident, a registered voter, a Democrat, and a candidate to fill an additional seat on the Democratic National Committee."

Touhy added, "All such letters must be delivered or postmarked before March 1, 1975."

Those desiring further information are to contact Chairman Touhy at the address given.

Democratic National Committee rules on filing of vacancies are as follows:

1. Vacancies on the National Committee caused by death, resignation, incapacity, the creation of additional seats or otherwise are filled pursuant to these special rules.

2. The chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee at least 35 days prior to the selection of the new members will announce and publicize the selection procedure.

3. Any Illinois Democrat is eligible to fill a vacancy. To become a candidate to fill a vacancy, the Democrat shall deliver or send a letter to the chairman at the offices of the Democratic State Central Committee stating the person's name and address, that the person is an Illinois resident, a registered voter, a Democrat, and a candidate to fill a vacancy on the DNC.

4. The letter of nomination must be postmarked at least 12 days prior to the selection.

5. A FINISHED LOOK—Beginning to look a lot like buildings are the two new classroom structures on the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Ground was broken for the $14.4-million project in March, 1973, and University officials are hoping classes can be scheduled in the new buildings early next year. The structures are connected by an enclosed walkway, 4

Capital development requests by schools

Applications for state grants are being submitted in record numbers by Illinois school officials, according to Donald R. Le Fevre, executive director of the state Capital Development Board.

"Personal contact, mass mailings, the hope of additional funding, and individualized assistance have each contributed to the sudden inrush of applications for grant consideration," Le Fevre said. He noted that during the past eight days, 139 applications for planning assistance grants, construction grants and debt service grants have been received from Illinois school districts.

Debt service grant applications, available to school districts for paying off bonded debts, are running 40 per cent ahead of last year at this time, Le Fevre said. "Based on these early returns, it's quite possible that nearly 500 applications will be submitted and in processing stages by the March 1 cutoff. Last year, the CDB processed 484 grant applications, of which 294 were for debt service grants."

Le Fevre urged school districts planning to make grant applications to do so quickly in order to beat any last-minute rush and to receive prompt application review.

"Our staff is already at work processing the applications received so far," Le Fevre said. "If any school official needs individual assistance with his application forms, all that is needed is a call to our CDB school hotline. Help is only a phone call away." The hotline number is (217) 782-3912.

U. S. forcing Illinois to develop a vehicle inspection program

By LESTER BELL
Press-Record
Washington Bureau

The Department of Transportation will be forced to deny Illinois millions of dollars in federal funding if the state does not adopt approved vehicle and driver examination programs.

Illinois was deficient in four categories of long-range highway safety planning in 1973 when the DOT for the first time gave the states specific deadlines for upgrading their comprehensive plans to acceptable levels under the Highway Safety Act of 1966.

DOT is not only empowered, it is required, under the act to withhold all of a state's share of federal highway safety funds and 10 per cent of its federal funds for highway construction if deadlines are not met.

Illinois has met two of the deadlines and is now deficient only in these two categories:

1. The implementation by June 30, 1975, for a periodic inspection program for all classes of motor vehicles. In lieu of this, Illinois must have an approved pilot or demonstration program.
2. The operation within one year of the close of the 1975 legislative session of a driver re-examination program to include knowledge as well as vision testing at least once every four years.

Joint responsibility for reviewing and approving the comprehensive state plans rests with the Federal Highway Administration (FHA) and National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA).

Within NHTSA, which is headed by Dr. James Gregory, is the Office of State Program Assistance under the direction of C. Robert Wright.

Wright said in an interview that delay in meeting the federal standards for funding could cost a delinquent state dearly in assistance.

He estimated that Illinois is probably slated for $90 million in federal assistance for highway construction.

"I would hate to see a state lose 10 per cent of its highway money, that's a healthy amount," he said. "As for highway safety funds, that's a drop in the bucket—about $4 million for Illinois."

Wright said that as far as DOT is concerned, "the priority is on motor vehicle inspection," because federal courts have ruled that all states will have to meet the federal standards or lose their federal funding.

He pointed out that the Highway Act of 1966 is explicit in asserting that the U. S. secretary of transportation "shall not apportion" safety funds and "shall reduce" construction funds to delinquent states.

Although Illinois has until June 30 to send DOT its plan for motor vehicle inspection, Wright says that as a practical matter DOT should have it in hand by June 1, at the latest.

"Approval before June 1 involves two administrations (FHA and NHTSA) and they will need time to review it. So it ought to be moving by June 1."

If Illinois does not adopt a "periodic" motor vehicle inspection program, it could qualify for federal funding with an acceptable "pilot or demonstration" program.

Four states have selected the "pilot" alternative, DOT spokesman says.

California, Connecticut, Michigan and Ohio use the "random spot check." State highway patrolmen wave cars over for a roadside examination.

So far, according to a DOT spokesman, the random check has been found satisfactory when patrolmen are doing their job well.

The random check, however, apparently is not the perfect solution.

"It is always being evaluated," cautioned the source. "At least it's what we would call an alternative."

Illinois had a vehicle inspection program at one time, "but there was a question of raokefts and it was eliminated," the source said.

DOT now lists 32 states that have motor vehicle inspection. Four others, as mentioned, have the random check.

Foreigners that have no such inspection, including Illinois, have been warned by DOT that their federal funding is in jeopardy.

When DOT first gave states deadlines in 1973, Illinois was one of the 45 DOT found deficient in planning through fiscal 1977. Only Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho and Ohio were up to par through that period.

DOT sent the delinquent states notices between March and June of 1973, but this was not publicly disclosed. The information was, however, available, on request.

The Illinois plan as revealed in November 1973 was approved only for fiscal 1974.

Continued approval for fiscal 1975 and subsequent fiscal years was contingent upon:

1. A revision by March 1, 1974, of an acceptable revised plan for programs under FHA AEGIS.
2. Establishment by Jan. 1, 1974, of a "fully functioning driver license advisory board."
3. Plus 3 and 4—the motor vehicle inspection and the driver examination.

Illinois met the first two requirements, leaving only the last two to be resolved to DOT's satisfaction.

Steel deficit exceeds overall trade deficit

The U.S. trade deficit in steel last year was greater than the nation's overall 1974 trade deficit, which was the second worst in this century.

According to government data released this week, the declared values of the year's steel mill product imports exceeded the value of this country's 1974 steel mill product exports by almost $3 billion.

If U.S. foreign trade in other steel products such as fabricated structural steel and wire rope is included, the total steel trade deficit for the year is $3.074 billion.

This figure exceeded the total 1974 U.S. trade deficit of $3.065 billion. In 1973, the trade deficit in steel mill products was $1.817 billion.

The 1974 total steel mill product imports were 16,191,000 tons, an increase of more than one million tons over the previous year's 15,150,000 tons.

Approximately 36.7 per cent of this foreign steel—$3,065,000 tons—arrived in the United States during the last three months of 1974, when other world markets were rapidly softening and U.S. consumers were concerned about the possible impact the coal strike would have on domestic steel availability.

Specialty steel imports surged sharply during the last three months of the year. The United States had a substantial trade deficit in its 1974 stainless steel trade.

Imports also accounted for about one-fifth of all tool steel sold in this country during the year.

Inspections to precede Venice residential occupancy permits

The Venice City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 18, to consider adoption of a new municipal housing code.

The document was placed on first reading Feb. 8 after a detailed review by city officials.

It provides for occupancy permits for dwellings, and has as its basic purpose the protection of public health, safety and welfare.

A full-time enforcement official is planned, and there is to be special emphasis on requiring absentee landlords to cooperate in meeting property maintenance regulations.

Some of the proposed space and occupancy rules were deleted during the Feb. 8 discussion of the specific wording.

When passed in final form the ordinance will be about 25 pages long and available at the city clerk's office for inspection.

Among the items covered in the document are stairways and porches, yards, broken glass and boarding-up, screens, windows, doors, hatchways, infestation, grading and drainage of lots, foundations, exterior walls and roofs, floors, interior walls, ceilings, and general minimum standards for dwelling and family units.

A fee for an occupancy permit was established at $1 for each dwelling. It will be unlawful for anyone to permit the occupation of any structure for any purpose until a certificate of occupancy has been issued by the building commissioner. For persons, such as landlords, who wish to repair or enlarge property before it is rented, a temporary occupancy permit for $1 must be obtained.

The ordinance calls for a $3 inspection fee to be charged before a permit will be issued.

Penalties for violating any provision of the code, upon conviction, can range from $25 to $500 for each violation and each day of continued violation shall constitute an additional violation.

Some sections of the proposed ordinance also deal with condemned buildings, transfer of ownership and the designation of dwelling units as unfit for human habitation.

A board of appeals and appeal procedures will be established by the ordinance.

To file an appeal a person will need to pay a $50 appeal fee. If the individual wins, the appeal will be returned.

The board of appeals consists of the council's Housing Standards committee, Aldermen Ervin, Thomas Voegele, George Lewis and Jack Tolliver, city engineer.

The ordinance, if passed on Feb. 18, will then be published in pamphlet form and become effective 10 days after final passage.

Russian, German, French, Spanish and Italian taught at language laboratory

Nearly 94,000 students have used the foreign language laboratory at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville since the facility was opened in 1966. University officials agree that the 36-station lab, which is open approximately 70 hours per week, is one of the busiest places on campus.

According to Veronique Zaytzeff, director, the heavy use of the "language library" indicates a growing need in recent years for greater numbers of people to be able to understand and speak foreign languages.

"Understanding and speaking a foreign language are matters of habit, not of knowledge," Miss Zaytzeff contends. "The only known way to form habits is through practice. Think about the child who learns its native language. On the other hand, if the child is unable to play a selection on the piano satisfactorily, everybody does not hesitate to say he has not practiced enough. Yet, if a student does not make satisfactory progress in speaking a foreign language, it is customary to say he has not studied enough. What he needs, of course, is more practice."

The basic purpose of the language lab is to provide a place for students to practice their choice of any of the major languages, including French, German,

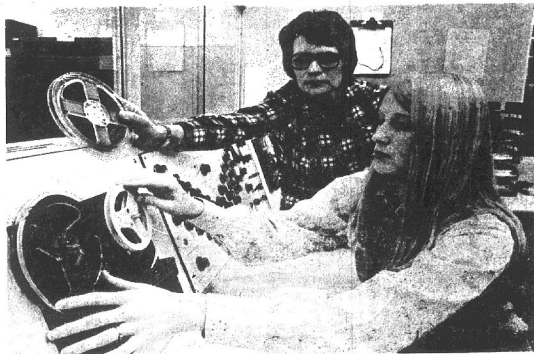

Spanish, Italian, Russian and English. Working individually in booths equipped with headphones, microphones and dual-track tape recorders, students can listen and respond with "a sense of isolation and intimate contact with the language," Miss Zaytzeff said.

The $50,000 facility on the second floor of the Peck Building was the "brainchild" of Alfred G. Pellegrino, professor of foreign languages and literature, who served as chairman of the foreign language department from 1962 to 1970.

One of the more popular uses of the SIUE lab is by foreign students enrolled at the University who want to learn and practice English. Miss Zaytzeff estimates at least 25 students per week use the language library for this purpose.

Miss Zaytzeff believes one of the principal advantages of the lab is the opportunity for students to work individually. "In class, with the teacher asking a question of 30 students, 29 are idle, while one is busy answering. In the language lab, all students present can practice aloud simultaneously, yet individually," she said.

Seven student workers, each capable of speaking at least two foreign languages, assist with the operation of the lab. Miss Zaytzeff, in addition to TAPES OF MUSIC as well as native speech are available in the foreign language laboratory at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Preparing the control console for a practice session are Veronique Zaytzeff, director, and Hollis Burkhardt of Hinsdale, who is majoring in French. Mrs. Burkhardt is one of the laboratory's seven student workers, all of whom are capable of speaking at least two foreign languages.

managing the lab, teaches Russian and French, and she brings an authentic background of both languages to the University.

She was born in Casablanca of Russian parents and studied and taught in Morocco and France before coming to the United States in 1967. She has been a member of the SIUE faculty since 1969 and director of the lab since 1970.

Miss Zaytzeff believes the understanding of a foreign language can be improved by having the opportunity to hear a wide variety of native voices, and the lab library includes numerous tapes of foreign music as well as recordings of native speech for imitation and drill.

RUSSIAN LANGUAGE is practiced by Bill Waymire of Wood River in the foreign language laboratory at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Waymire, a junior, finds it helpful to be able to communicate on a one-to-one basis with the instructor through the use of the laboratory sound system.

Levee budget shows deficit

A 1975 budget and appropriation bill projecting total expenditures of $2,512,810 this year was approved by the East Side Levee and Sanitary District board of trustees in a recessed meeting at East St. Louis Friday afternoon.

The budget projects a substantial deficit in the general fund in which $1,526,875 is appropriated. Revenue in this fund is projected at $1,229,000, but levee board officials have said that the prospect of decreased tax collections is expected to cut this figure to about $800,000.

If this prediction holds true, the district would encounter a deficit of about $700,000 for its new fiscal year beginning Jan. 1 and ends Dec. 31.

Expenditures for repayment of bond principal and interest are estimated in the budget at $780,000. Although revenue of $1,178,882 is expected for this account, bond funds are not transferable to other accounts to offset shortages.

Art of cake decorating viewed

Mrs. Velma Farrance, a member of the Evening Guild at St. John United Church of Christ, demonstrated the art of cake decorating for guild members at a meeting last week in the Fellowship Hall. The speaker also displayed several cakes decorated earlier in varied motifs and colors. Later, she served the home-baked cakes during the social hour to 26 members and three guests.

As part of the February program, a devotional lesson was presented by Mrs. Harriet Bunselmeyer. Mrs. Doris Labovay and Mrs. Willodean Walker.

Volunteers still are needed to aid pupils at Washington School by reading or listening and talking with the youngsters between 3 and 4 p.m. each weekday, guild members were informed.

A bake sale was set for March 21 and 22 and plans were reviewed for a bus trip to Bloomington on April 20 for a performance of a passion play. Tickets now are available for the latter event, which will feature a picnic lunch at the Church Women express areas of concern

Fifty women from various area churches were guests last week of the executive board of Church Women United (CWU) at a luncheon at Central Christian Church.

The affair brought together in a spirit of ecumenism representatives from interested churches in the community, both to listen and to share ideas, Mrs. James Henderson, CWU president, said.

Causes and concerns were expressed by the guests about specific needs of the community in a discussion session moderated by Mrs. Henderson. Church Women United plans to utilize the concerns voiced by this "listening team" to broaden its involvement in the Quad-City area, the CWU president said.

Several hundred hours of volunteer time donated by CWU members currently are utilized in six areas of action, Mrs. Henderson explained.

Ongoing projects include: The Blood Program, under the direction of Mrs. Helen Baran, which has been averaging 1,200 units of blood a year for the American Red Cross.

Friends in Learning, directed by Mrs. Charles Hunsinger, a program to provide help to children with learning problems.

The Layette Project, initiated and administered by Mrs. Frank Ehler, through which layettes are donated to needy new-borns upon referral by local social agencies.

The Nearly New Clothing Center, one of the largest operations sponsored by the group, to provide attractive and useful clothing to school age children whose parents are unable to supply them, Mrs. Joyce Schrader is project director.

Senior Service, supervised by Mrs. Grace Lonsing, to plan monthly birthday parties at a local nursing home for the residents, many of whom have no families.

Christian Rural Overseas Project (CROP) to collect financial donations for poverty stricken areas in underdeveloped countries. Mrs. George Vogeler is in charge of the project.

The work of Church Women United is funded solely by donations, Mrs. Henderson explained. Its projects are carried out by the many volunteers who give of their time because they are concerned, she noted.

The group welcomes all individuals, regardless of whether they are members of organized churches — individuals who share in Church Women United's concern for the dignity of the individual, the CWU officer said.

Cub Scout dinner at Lake School

A blue and gold banquet was held at Lake School for Cub Scout families belonging to Cub Pack 108, sponsored by Lake PTA, and Pack 121 from Wilson School.

The pledge of allegiance was led by Norman Kinder, Kerry Plinn and Jimmy Smith of Pack 121. Mrs. Pat Foote, committee chairman, read the candle ceremony and a prayer was offered by the club.

In the award ceremonies John White received dinner cords and Cubmaster Richard Foote gave Norman Kinder, outgoing dinner, a dinner tab. Two-year pins were awarded to the Kinder youth, Jimmy Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kinder Jr.

Bobcat badges were presented to Tom Gula, David Conble and John White and a Wolf badge to Kerry Plinn.

Appreciation certificates were given to Lester Vierling, Mr. and Mrs. Kinder, Frances Plinn, Dave Becherer, Sandy and Charles Buford, and Edward Gowan.

Kinder presented a certificate to Cubmaster Foote, who has served two years, and awarded Pack 121 a council certificate. Summertime pack awards were received by Mrs. Plinn and Mrs. Kinder.

Eric Tucker entertained the group with a magic act, assisted by Ted Baker. A song led by Dave Becherer followed. Each Cub Scout received a calendar from Granite City Trust and Savings Bank.

In keeping with the theme, "Birthdays," the tables were decorated with candles, favors, gifts and a birthday cake.

Couple describes work in Africa

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Anderson, who have been involved in evangelistic work in Zaire (Congo), were guest speakers at a meeting of the Christian Women's Fellowship at Central Christian Church.

Mrs. Marie Gordon, president, introduced the Andersons.

The couple served in Africa from June 1957 until August 1974, working through the Division of Overseas Ministries of the Christian Church in rural evangelism and educational programs.

They showed slides of the countryside to illustrate their informative talk and displayed many items made by the people of Zaire.

Mrs. Madge Hanson was in charge of the worship hour. Reports were given by Mrs. Peggy Gibbons, Mrs. Joyce Bennington and group leaders, Mrs. Dorothea Rivenburgh, Mrs. Vanna Berkbigler and Mrs. Linda Leggett.

Mrs. Gayla Stuart, service chairman said sewing kits for the Church World Service project are due to be turned in. Canned goods are being collected for emergency baskets for use in this area, she announced. The donated food should be brought to the winter assembly at the church on Feb. 25.

Rabbi Alvan D. Rubin of Temple Israel will be the featured speaker at the assembly.

World Day of Prayer, sponsored by the Quad-City Church Women United, will be observed on March 7, Mrs. Gordon said.

The president appointed Mrs. Laura Aerne and Mrs. Lois Billrey as co-chairmen of the annual "Strawberry Festival," set this year on June 14.

The CWU Benediction concluded the meeting and Group Three members served refreshments. Hostesses were Mrs. Leggett, Mrs. Marge Kacera, Mrs. Bennington, Mrs. Myra Parrish and Mrs. Gordon.

Job trend shows need for building program—Walker

Legislation to implement Gov. Dan Walker's Accelerated Building Program has been introduced in both the Illinois Senate and House of Representatives.

Governor Dan Walker immediately made a vigorous appeal for enactment by the General Assembly.

Fifteen bills were introduced, including an Emergency Construction Purchasing Act, additional authorizations for both revenue and general obligation bonds, enabling legislation for new programs and appropriations for the state agencies involved in the program.

The bills, drafted in the Legislative Reference Bureau, were turned over to the leaders of the House and Senate for coordination of sponsorship and assignment to committees.

Gov. Walker, Senate President Cecil A. Partridge (D, Chicago) and House Speaker William A. Redmond (D, Bensenville) announced earlier that by mutual agreement, the two legislative houses will hold joint committee hearings, where possible, to expedite consideration of the program. The legislation introduced provides for:

1. An additional $312 million appropriation to the Department of Transportation for repaving and widening of dangerous highways, airport improvements, repairing dangerous bridges and bikeways.
2. A $12 million appropriation to the Board of Higher Education for a new program of capital grants to eligible non-public colleges and universities.
3. An additional $206 million appropriation to the Environmental Protection Agency for grants to communities for sewer system construction.
4. A bill appropriating an additional $425 million to the Capital Development Board for school construction.

An additional $13,687,184 to the CDB for renovation of state facilities and institutions, energy conserving improvements to state buildings, construction of community centers for the developmentally disabled, construction of new parks and other additional conservation capital projects.

An additional $4.55 million to the Department of Transportation Division of Waterways, for waterways capital improvements; an additional $496,150 to the Department of Corrections for improvements such as painting, which are not bondable; and an additional $250,000 to the Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities for capital improvements not bondable.

5. An Emergency State Construction Purchasing Act to reduce the time required for completion of state construction projects.

6. A bill to amend the Illinois Industrial Development Authority so that it can lend to industries in all parts of the state, and so that its loans can be used for plant expansion and heavy equipment purchases as well as new plant construction.

7. A bill to increase the state's share by 25 per cent in the formula for matching funds with communities to build schools (which would result in state payment of up to 95 per cent of the cost of construction) for these communities that apply and receive approval by Oct. 31, 1975, and to increase the School Construction (general obligation) bond authorization (not issuance) from $300 million to $355 million.

8. A Specialized Living Centers Act to permit the state to build and then turn over to community and parental organizations centers for the developmentally disabled.

9. A bill to amend the Capital Development Board Act to give the Board of Higher Education sole jurisdiction over a new program of one-time grants to private colleges and universities for repair and rehabilitation of buildings.

10. An increase in the Capital Development (general obligation) bond authorization (not issuance) from $600 million to $893 million and expansion of permitted use of CDB bond funds to include waterways improvements and one-time grants to private colleges.

11. An increase in the Illinois Housing Development Authority (revenue) bond authorization from $500 million to $1.1 billion and an increase in the maximum interest rate HUD can offer from 8 to 9 per cent.

12. An increase in the Illinois Industrial Pollution Control Financing Authority (revenue) bond authorization from $250 million to $500 million, and a change in the definition of small business.

13. A new $565 million transportation general revenue bond authorization, to be known as Series C bonds, for highway reconstruction.

14. A bill to give the Department of Transportation authority to use Transportation Bonds, Series B, for capital renovations of Amtrak stations and commuter railroad stations.

15. And a bill establishing the mechanism for one-time grants to private higher education institutions.

Commenting during the weekend on the construction and bonding proposals, Governor Walker said, "The latest unemployment figures are of great concern to me and should be of great concern to everyone."

"According to the Bureau of Employment Security, unemployment reached 6.2 per cent at the end of January. That's 308,000 people in Illinois out of work."

"The 6.2 per cent unemployment figure is almost 50 per cent more than it was a year ago. This represents a slide of major proportions."

"These figures underline the great need for the strong action provided by the Accelerated Building Program to deal with this recession."

"Several weeks ago, the trend line indicated that unemployment would reach 6.5 per cent in June. The likelihood is strong that we will pass 6.5 per cent unemployment this month, February."

basins of steady employment are being hit significantly harder than anticipated."

"The unemployment rate in the Moline-Rock Island area was 3 per cent a year ago. It is now 4.4 per cent."

"Decatur's unemployment rate was 4.5 per cent a year ago. It has more than doubled to 8.5 per cent."

"Unemployment in the Madison-St. Clair Counties area has reached 9.3 per cent. Rockford's unemployment has dropped from 10.7 per cent last month to 8.4 per cent."

"Even Springfield's unemployment rate has climbed from 3.6 per cent to 4.3 per cent."

Gov. Walker continued, "It's clear to me, at any rate, that action is necessary to deal with this problem."

"Although our current economic plight is the result of international developments and national policies, we cannot sit back and say that it's someone else's fault, and let someone else correct it."

"The Accelerated Building Program that has been proposed to the legislature will not end unemployment. But it will provide relief."

GRANITE CITY PRESS-RECORD
Thurs., Feb. 13, 1975 Page 42

"It can, perhaps, put a floor on the decline. The program will provide jobs in the private sector where they are needed. It will not add to government payrolls."

"Its impact is not limited to the construction industry. It will have an impact on allied industries, on support industries and at the retail level."

"Equally important, it will help us rehabilitate, build and improve state facilities badly in need of improvement. It will not force a tax increase."

"I know the legislature shares my concern, and the legislative leaders have promised to give this program their prompt attention."

"I would urge all those who share my concern—businessmen, working people and government and civic leaders—to give this program their serious consideration."

Authors' conference for grade students

Creation comes naturally to children. Their imaginations are unfettered and their minds questioning.

In the belief that this innate creativity should be nurtured and encouraged, the Illinois Office of Education and the Language Experience Special Interest Council will sponsor Illinois' first statewide Young Authors Conference this spring.

The conference, for young writers in grades one through six, will be held May 3 at Eisenhower High School in Decatur.

Each district in the state may submit one manuscript, and larger districts may submit one manuscript for each 1,000 students in grades one through six.

The manuscripts must be the original work of a child in grades one through six, and must be selected by a seven-member panel including four students in grades one through six, one teacher and two parents.

The manuscripts will be submitted to a committee of children and adults named by the Language Council, which will select authors to be invited to the one-day conference.

Those attending will take part in group sessions to share ideas with other young authors, and will hear an author of children's books. Activities also have been planned for parents or teachers accompanying the children.

Manuscripts and submission forms must be submitted by March 10.

For submission of forms or further information, school districts may contact Mrs. Judy Overturn, Department of Instruction, Illinois Office of Education, 316 S. 2nd St., Springfield 62766, or call (217) 782-2826; or Dr. Jane Davidson, President, Language Experience Special Interest Council, Graham Hall, Department of Education Administration and Services, Reading Clinic, Northern Illinois University, DeKalb 60115.

Hope to restore state's orphan strip-mined land

Gov. Dan Walker during the weekend signed legislation which creates a new program to reclaim abandoned strip-mined land. He also signed a bill which strengthens existing strip mine reclamation requirements.

The new laws take effect July 1. He commented, "We are making an all-out effort to significantly increase coal production in Illinois."

"But in the process, we cannot, must not and will not lose sight of the equally important duty to protect the environment. That includes our resources of natural beauty, rich agricultural land and clean water."

"Under the program sponsored by Rep. Ken Boyle (D, Carlinville), we will be authorizing for the first time reclamation of abandoned land that no mining company can be held legally responsible for."

"Some of this 'orphaned' stripped land can be turned into productive farm acreage. Cleaning it up may be costly, but good farm land is becoming more and more scarce. We must do everything we can to put as much land as possible into growing food."

"Other orphaned land should be restored because mining waste poses dangers, such as spontaneous fires. It causes injuries to children who play in waste piles. And getting rid of the ugly sights which scar the landscape is a useful end in itself."

"As for land still being mined or to be mined in the future, we have a good strip mine reclamation law on the books. This new legislation I am signing also strengthens that law."

House Bill 1114, sponsored by Rep. Boyle, creates a state of Mined Land Reclamation Council to authorize reclamation of land strip-mined before 1962.

Under the act, land will be acquired by the Department of Mines and Minerals, restored to usable condition and then either converted to state use, transferred to a local government or sold at public auction.

"An important responsibility of the new council will be to ensure that Illinois receives its fair share of federal funds for strip mine reclamation — particularly if Illinois coal proceeds are to be assessed under any federal programs," the governor said.

A companion bill, House Bill 1115, contains the 1974-75 appropriation for the new abandoned land reclamation program.

Gov. Walker reduced the appropriation from $2.5 million to $100,000, enabling the council to undertake a survey of abandoned land under the act.

The original appropriation of $2.5 million could not be spent before July 1 and would lapse, he reported.

House Bill 1277, sponsored by Rep. A. T. McMaster (R, Oneida), contains 27 changes in the Surface-Mined Land Conservation and Reclamation Act.

The key change is the new requirement that mining companies set aside dark topsoil when surface mining land to be used later as row crop farmland. The requirement is a specific way of ensuring that surface-mined farmland is restored to its original condition.

The rich topsoil is to be segregated from other soil and rock removed in the mining operation. When the land is being restored, the topsoil will be replaced in its original state.

The legislation also extends reclamation requirements to land and water affected by coal mine run-offs.

In addition, the new law increases the amount of information a strip mine operation must make available to the public, and increases the bond that must be posted before a strip mine operation begins.

Robert Francis new judge; Rarick also merits selection

Congratulations are due Robert D. Francis, the Granite City attorney elected by Madison County circuit judges to one of two vacant associate judge positions.

The judges surprisingly included Joseph R. Bartlyk among those receiving enough votes to be considered in runoff balloting for the other post. We had not commented earlier because it seemed so unlikely he would finish as high as second or third in the evaluation of the 15 applicants, but nevertheless he did score that high.

Our recommendation is that the second $36,000 judicial post go to Philip J. Rarick, a Troy resident active in a Collinsville law firm and the other runoff qualifier.

Mr. Bartlyk has more legal experience, but while serving as state's attorney of Madison County he was named in theft indictments and later pleaded guilty to misconduct related to use of funds. He relinquished his Bar Association affiliation and later was reinstated.

We wish him no ill but believe it is self-evident that the episode should preclude his elevation to the bench when there are so many other capable aspirants.

Public confidence in our court system should not be weakened, and by the judges themselves, through such a selection. Mr. Rarick should get the appointment.

Coupons in Press-Record offer big savings to shoppers

Food price changes up and down are making families increasingly cost conscious, and prompting many shoppers to be "coupon clippers," as Mrs. Catherine R. Mauck has pointed out. She is the Madison County extension advisor for home economics on the staff of the University of Illinois.

Use of coupons has increased by one-third during the past year, she reports. Pull-off box tops, mail, magazines, store circulars and newspaper advertisements are the primary sources of cents-off coupons, she adds.

The Press-Record publishes large numbers of coupons. In a recent issue, our count of specific savings offered soared well above $20, and that figure did not include the percentage reductions on coupon savings that did not specify exact amounts.

In other words, that day's copy of the Press-Record was worth more than $20 to a family that made use of the coupons that were included in its advertisements.

Mrs. Mauck provides the following suggestions and comments:

Consumers who have the time are taking their coupon clipping seriously. Some have gone so far as to develop a filing system for keeping box tops, coupons and labels that possibly can be used later as proof of purchase.

Others save cash refund coupons from newspapers, mail or pads attached to grocery store shelves, and send both the coupon and proof of purchase for the refund.

Couponing is also becoming a more popular form of promotion. The overall volume of coupons is thought to have increased 67 percent in the past five years. There even are books published that give information on companies offering special coupon programs.

Of course, no one individual will wish to cut on every coupon that comes into his or her possession.

To make coupon clipping pay off, the consumer must be a wise shopper. A good product, even with a coupon discount, may be more costly than a more familiar brand. And savings could dissolve if coupons were used to buy unnecessary items.

Even conservative coupon clippers are believed to be earning between a penny and a penny earned — many dollars every week.

And saving and redeeming our newspaper coupons can directly reduce food costs, especially when used to buy items the family would ordinarily buy when time is devoted to comparing the various bargains currently available.

Internal Revenue Service

Q. How long do I have to keep my tax records on file?

A. Your records must be retained as long as they contain information that may be material in the administration of any Internal Revenue law. Records that contain information that may be material in the administration of any Internal Revenue law, such as a deduction appearing on your return should be kept until the statute of limitations expires for that return. Usually this is three years from the date the return was due or filed, or two years from the date the tax was paid, whichever occurs later. Some records, such as those relating to a deduction for a loss, must be retained for a longer period. For example, if you sell a house, you will have to keep all the records concerning the property so that later if you sell it, you can prove how much you paid for it, what you spent for repairs, etc. Records of transactions relating to property should be retained as long as they are material in determining the basis of the original or replacement property.

Q. Is the interest I received with my tax refund in 1974 subject to income tax?

A. Yes. If you receive a tax refund that includes interest, the interest must be included in your gross income in the year received.

Creating sheltered workshop for the handicapped at building in Madison

To the Editor:

OATH, the Organization for the Advancement of the Handicapped, began as a dream—not one dream, but a similar dream for many persons. In May 1973, five individuals finally met to crystallize this dream. Milton Morris, Daryl Few, Eugene Tondre, Henry Helrich and Melba Grady agreed that it was necessary to write the aims and objectives of these dreams and to give the group a name.

The name OATH was chosen and these objectives seemed pertinent.

1. To buy, develop and equip real estate to house programs of vocational evaluation.

2. Work adjustment training.

3. Operation of sheltered workshops.

4. And work activity, recreation and other programs necessary for rehabilitation of the mentally, emotionally or physically handicapped.

these and other people in this noble cause.

After a year of work, investigation and close cooperation between many groups, OATH members met in April 1974.

At this meeting, the officers made official the selection of 11 board members.

These first officers were: Morris, president; Few, vice-president; Tondre, treasurer; Helrich, secretary; and Helrich, parliamentarian.

Also at this meeting, the board members voted to purchase property at 608 State St., Madison, to be renovated to house the workshop, operated by Specialized Services.

This workshop had been forced to discontinue in this area because of a lack of facilities. The clients were bused to a workshop in Collinsville.

Many persons have given OATH non-interest-bearing loans—gifts of time and money.

The facility to house the workshop is nearing completion and everything that has been done in the building is first-class—space, plumbing, heating, safety provisions and decorating.

Each OATH member is very pleased at this new facility; they are not ready to stop. They are not ready to stop.

Already a committee to study new projects to further fulfill the aims of OATH is functioning. This committee consists of Bill Burns, Melba Grady, Fred Stille, Helrich, Vivian Dine and Wayne Siefer.

Those interested in buying a part of the community benefit program, and working hard on a worthwhile project, may contact Melba Grady at 877-8806, or Eugene Tondre.

Each share costs $10. It is not transferable and ownership is limited to one share per shareholder.

This is an excellent opportunity for anyone to "share in care" of those less fortunate than ourselves.

Winter Wonderland

No doubt about professional wrestling heroes and villains

By BILL WINTER

(First of two columns)

Old-time western movies were comforting because everything was neatly sorted out. Good guys wore white hats, bad guys wore dark hats, and the good guys always won.

Of course, no one individual will wish to cut on every coupon that comes into his or her possession.

To make coupon clipping pay off, the consumer must be a wise shopper. A good product, even with a coupon discount, may be more costly than a more familiar brand. And savings could dissolve if coupons were used to buy unnecessary items.

Even conservative coupon clippers are believed to be earning between a penny and a penny earned — many dollars every week.

And saving and redeeming our newspaper coupons can directly reduce food costs, especially when used to buy items the family would ordinarily buy when time is devoted to comparing the various bargains currently available.

But the crowds are still big, often more than 10,000. Referees still are quick to reprimand the good guys and slow to respond when villains are breaking a rule and a few opponents' backs.

(Officials in legitimate sports competition ought to have protested long ago about the damage to their image in regard to eyesight, judgment and fairness.)

Wrestling probably dates back to the era of cave men, and some of today's professional wrestlers haven't changed a lot.

Their size and strength are such that they appear fully capable of out-muscling a stray madman while away from the cage rattling up some food for their family.

No doubt there always have been crowd-pleasers and less popular wrestlers in the pro ranks, but the distinction between the two has been developed to the ultimate degree—almost a new art form—to add to the drama of the exhibitions.

Heroes are clean-cut straight-shooters who nearly always follow the regulations unless provoked into justified rage by their foes' outrageous rule violations.

Dory Funk Jr. (the late Dory Sr. was a wrestler) frequently draws applause for his clean-cut, straight-shooting style. He is a hold that might be injurious.

The bad guys often mimic and prance and take unfair advantage of their opponents and choke their opponents and kick people when they're down and do almost anything else to attract boos.

When showing they lack courage, they quake so much that their long, loose white hair and forth, almost obscuring their faces.

Exactly who assigns them these roles is uncertain. Most of them might prefer to be heroes, but, as they say, "That's show business!"

Who you're paired against, for example, has a big effect on influencing the spirited, vocal audiences.

Virtually every bout has an identifiable favorite versus an obvious object of the crowd's scorn. Current favorites here include Cowboy Bob Ellis, Bobo Brazil, Pat O'Connor, Ronnie Elchison and Sailor Art Thomas.

Bad guys include Lord Alfred Hayes, Harley Race, Big Bill Miller, Von Raschke, Rene Goulet, Rock Riddle, Moose Cholak and Bobby Jagers.

Physical prowess is an essential. Some of the punches may involve a bit of fakery, but when a wrestler is lifted above another's head and thrown onto the ring floor, he has to be in top condition to survive.

Bruises, cuts and dislocations do occur, especially when someone comes in contact with a ring post or is flipped out of the ring and onto the concrete audience floor.

Strength is in awesome abundance. O'Connor, 235 pounds, can and does toss 375-pound Cholak around with ease.

As noted, memory spans the period from Longson to Brisco. But the recorded rivalry actually goes back much farther, to shortly after the turn of the century.

National Wrestling Alliance statistics provide this account of the past 70 years and the bouts in which the championship changed hands:

1905—Frank Gotch defeated George Hackenschmidt.

1906—Fred Beal defeated Gotch.

1907—Gotch defeated Beal.

1913—Gotch retired as world heavyweight champion.

1914—Charles Cutler defeated Henry Ordeman and Jesse Westgard in a tournament to fill the vacant title.

1915—Joe Stecher defeated Cutler.

1917—Earl Caddock defeated Stecher.

1930 (June 6)—London defeated Shikat in Philadelphia.

Then, in 1932, Lewis pinned Shikat in a match billed as the "world championship" in New York.

1933—Jim Browning defeated Lewis in New York.

1934—London defeated Browning in New York.

1935 (June 27)—Dan O'Mahoney defeated London in Boston.

1935 (June 30)—O'Mahoney defeated George in Boston.

1935 (June 30)—O'Mahoney defeated Marshall in St. Louis.

1936 (Feb. 11)—Steve (Crusher) Casey defeated Thesz in Boston.

1938 (September)—The National Wrestling Association, at its convention in Montreal, recognized Marshall as the champion for two reasons:

Casey, the erstwhile champ, was out of the country, and Marshall had been disqualified in his bout with Casey because Casey had been thrown out of the ring.

The decision was reversed because, as Marshall's manager, Billy Sandow, pointed out, "the action was not deliberate."

1939 (Feb. 23)—Thesz defeated Marshall in St. Louis.

1939 (June 23)—Bronko Nagurski defeated Thesz in Houston.

1940 (March 7)—Ray Steele defeated Nagurski in St. Louis.

1941 (March 11)—Nagurski defeated Steele in Minneapolis.

1941 (June 5)—Sander Szabo defeated Nagurski in St. Louis.

Contingent fees add to volume of malpractice suits

By LON HOCKER

Past President American College of Trial Lawyers

Here are some thoughts on the medical malpractice problem which has been the subject of much concern recently.

These suits are a problem because our present judicial system has made it so. The odds are grossly in favor of the claimant.

The claimant can't lose — the law permits him to hire a lawyer on a contingency, i.e. for one-fourth, one-third, or one-half of the recovery.

This means the claimant can't be out of pocket for an attorney's fee. Not so the defendant doctor or hospital, or what is the same thing, the doctor's or hospital's insurance company.

The defendant cannot hire on a contingency basis, and must pay the defense lawyer's fee WIN or LOSE.

Cure in England and Canada, attorney's fees are awarded to the winning party as part of his court costs.

This does no more than put the defendant back where he was when the suit was filed, if he wins the case, instead of a couple of thousand dollars in the hole.

That is merely simple justice. On the other hand, it makes a claimant think twice before filing a long-shot case with a view to getting a nuisance settlement.

2. In case of a serious injury or bad result, the probable fee to the claimant's lawyer surpasses what a lawyer could ever charge on a time-spent basis.

For a fee of a million dollars is $333,333.

For a fee in this order of magnitude, the most aggressive and most prosperous lawyer can afford to gamble his time, and the temptation to cut a corner to win is inherent in the arrangement.

The lawyer, having an interest in the outcome, becomes, to that extent, a co-plaintiff.

Public will not and cannot hire the most capable of expert witnesses, and advance these costs for his client's account.

It is hard for Mr. John Q. Public to realize that it is, not some distant, rich and impersonal insurance company, who ultimately has to pay these judgments, in the form of increased medical costs for his own care.

Salvation Army accepting volunteers

To the Editor:

I am telling people to join the Army and see the world.

This Army is not interested in conscripting, but volunteers are welcome with open arms — and open hearts. If you haven't guessed it already, it's the Salvation Army.

We're an Army spread throughout the world in more than 70 countries and colonies.

You see, the possibility is there; you could join this Army and see the world.

There is a world in need — children in need of care, young people needing guidance, young married couples needing counseling, the ill and afflicted in need of comfort, teachers, tutors, concerned people — all are needed for the young, the middle-aged and the elderly.

Salvation Army Volunteer Enterprises (SAVE) is a comparatively new structure in the Army, though the use of volunteers is as old as the Army itself.

Volunteers are needed in numerous Salvation Army-related programs.

In addition to the administrative headquarters, which is always in need of volunteer office workers, there's the Family Service Department which deals with ring due to injuries received in an automobile accident. He has been matched with Thesz in a title bout.

1956 (March 15)—Watson defeated Thesz in Toronto, Canada.

1956 (Nov. 9)—Thesz defeated Watson in St. Louis.

1957 (Nov. 14)—Dick Hutten defeated Thesz in Toronto, Canada.

1959 (Jan. 9)—Pat O'Connor defeated Thesz in St. Louis, Missouri.

1959 (Feb. 11)—Dory Funk Jr. defeated Kinski in Tampa, Fla.

Cure: The original Canons of Ethics of the American Bar Association formerly provided, "Where contingent fees are allowed by law, they shall be under the supervision of the court."

Contingent fees are not allowed in Canada.

Where they are allowed, if readopted by our Supreme Court, that the court may cut the agreed contingency down to 10 per cent, 5 per cent, or whatever is reasonable considering the responsibility assumed and the time spent by the lawyer.

One measure of reasonableness might be the normal per-hour charge, doubled, to take account of the cases in which no fee is collectible.

3. Why, in the final analysis, must a group of 12 randomly-selected citizens in a jury box be allowed to "second-guess" a doctor with eight or 10 years of medical training?

It is generally supposed among lawyers that an express pre-treatment waiver of the right to claim medical malpractice would be against public policy and void.

Cure: We could (as other states have done) abolish the common law rule and permit binding contracts to arbitrate.

This would permit doctors and hospitals to require as a pre-condition to treatment, that the patient agree to arbitrate any claim he might wish to make for medical malpractice — each side picking one arbitrator and they would be picking the third, a medical doctor skilled in the medical field involved in the case.

There is nothing scary about this.

Nearly every union-management contract contains a provision for binding arbitration of unresolved employment grievances. This is binding in Missouri because of an express authorization in the federal Taft-Hartley law, and everybody likes it.

It is hard for Mr. John Q. Public to realize that it is, not some distant, rich and impersonal insurance company, who ultimately has to pay these judgments, in the form of increased medical costs for his own care.

Public will not and cannot hire the most capable of expert witnesses, and advance these costs for his client's account.

Nameoki hears rule on bill paying procedure

In an attempt to resolve a difference of opinion between a Nameoki Township Supervisor Louis Whitsell and Township Highway Commissioner Albert Bell, the Nameoki Town Board of Auditors heard a report from its attorney Monday night on the proper way for highway department bills to be paid.

Whitsell has contended he has no authority to pay any bill unless it is accompanied by a warrant from the highway commissioner and the warrant and bill are certified by Town Clerk Douglas Teator.

Township Attorney Carl Runge gave the auditors a specific set of guidelines to follow in paying the bills. His guidelines basically are the same as those presently being used, with the exception that a warrant is to be added for the highway commissioner's certification that the bills are proper and are to be charged to the proper accounts.

The board met later to discuss the form of the warrant to be used. The bill list now in use will continue to be a part of the procedure.

Two highway material bills Whitsell has been refusing to pay were studied by Runge who said they appear proper and should be paid, if a warrant is attached.

Bell questioned why employees supplied to the Township under the Manpower Development program are receiving differing rates of pay and why Manpower workers under Whitsell's control are paid more than those under his control.

Whitsell responded that Bell's workers were paid according to the Highway department's starting wage, which is required by the program.

Since those working for Whitsell started in new positions where there was no established starting salary, the employees began work under a salary established by the county Manpower program, the supervisor explained.

Bell said he felt his Manpower workers were being paid too low a rate, to which Whitsell answered, "It is definitely too low, but you start your men too low."

Bilingual programs move into school curriculums

There's more to a school's language curriculum than the standard English these days.

One school within the Argo School District, located in northern Illinois, recently initiated a program in Macedonian, a Slavic language. Another school, King Elementary in Urbana, is involved in a pilot program of 14 different languages.

In some cases these courses are mandatory as stipulated by the law establishing the Illinois bilingual education program. The law, passed in 1973, provides for transitional bilingual programs for children of limited English-speaking ability meeting specified requirements, if there are at least 20 such students in any language classification. It also provides for state aid to participating schools.

The law defines "children of limited English-speaking ability" to mean "children who were not born in the United States whose native tongue is a language other than English and who are incapable of performing ordinary classroom work in English; and children who were born in the United States of parents possessing no or limited English-speaking ability and who are incapable of performing ordinary classroom work in English."

According to the Illinois State Board of Education, there are an estimated 100,000 children in the state who speak and understand little or no English. Approximately 24,000 students speaking 10 different languages are enrolled in the program.

The board recently voted to seek increased funding for the state bilingual program, increased bilingual staff in the Illinois Office of Education to administer it, and an increased flexibility of teacher certification to provide the bilingual teachers who will be needed.

According to a report compiled by the Illinois Board of Higher Education from information gathered at a recent Bilingual Teacher Preparation Conference, there has been an increase from 20 bilingual teachers in the state in 1969 to 500 in 1974. However, it is estimated that the Chicago area will need 400 additional teachers to satisfy the provisions set forth in the law.

Nationwide, the geographical distribution of bilingual programs includes 30 states, Guam, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Salipan, according to the report, and they number 450-500. The most prevalent

Talk of cutbacks worries farmers

Talk of cutbacks in agricultural production by farmers and farm groups has led Illinois Agriculture Director Robert J. "Bud" Williams to call a public meeting of farmers to discuss their plans with agriculture officials and with each other.

Farm Outlook '75 is scheduled for 10 a.m., Wednesday, Feb. 19, at the Illinois Building Auditorium on the State Fairgrounds in Springfield.

Williams said that farmers told him they are considering production cutbacks for a number of reasons, among them the increasing costs of production input as well as the strain put on the soil by "back-porch-to-highway production."

Williams said that the cost of fertilizers, herbicides and equipment has already gone up dramatically.

"Farmers are just like anyone else," Williams said, "They can't produce at a loss and stay in business. And many of them are worried that is what they are being asked to do this year."

"Calls into our office indicate a lot of farmers think voluntary cutbacks are the way to fight this."

"We want to get everyone together to talk about how we can do the most for the entire economy, continue to feed much of the world's people and still stay in business."

"We've got to have a clear picture of what is going on to get this job done, so I hope every farmer who is concerned about this will join us at Farm Outlook '75 on February 19."

Madison Lions to send James Fincher to clinic

James Fincher, 33, of 1538 Third St., Madison, may have renewed hopes someday of being able to see, thanks to the members of the Madison Lions club. Plans are being made with Lions International to send him to the Chicago Eye Clinic for examination and possible treatment.

Fincher was injured in a car accident five years ago and sustained multiple injuries leaving him paralyzed and, unable to see.

The Madison Lions Club under the leadership of Lion Anthony Anselmo has been trying to obtain the best possible medical treatment for him.

Members of the Lions visit with him regularly every Sunday afternoon.

Fincher has regained some use of his right hand due partially to an exerciser the Lions obtained for him. Anselmo has expressed high hopes that Fincher will improve his strength through physical therapy, and hopes the Chicago Eye Clinic can help.

Youth orchestra audition March 1

Auditions for tenor soloist in the St. Louis Symphony Youth Orchestra's May 9 performance of Kodaly's Psalmus Hungaricus will be held at Powell Symphony Hall on Saturday, March 1.

The winning soloist will perform with the 112-member orchestra and choirs from Parkway West and Southwest High Schools, with Leonard Slatkin conducting.

The Youth Orchestra is celebrating its fifth anniversary season this year under the musical directorship of its founder, Leonard Slatkin, associate principal conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

Applications to audition for the tenor role in the May 9 performance should be obtained immediately by contacting Mrs. Edith Hougland, manager, at 7150 Wise Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63117, or phoning her at 644-1696 or 647-6284.

The deadline for completing and submitting the application form is Wednesday, Feb. 26. The Youth Orchestra, sponsored by the Women's Association of the St. Louis Symphony Society, presents three concerts each season and rehearses weekly.

DISTRICT ORATORICAL WINNER. Lisa Marie Groothuis, right, wears the first place gold medal which she won Saturday in the American Legion district oratorical contest at Roxana. With Lisa is her speech coach, Dr. Goni Michaeloff, head of the English department at Granite City High School North.

Lisa Groothuis wins district oratorical

Lisa Marie Groothuis, a senior at Granite City High School North, won the American Legion district oratorical contest during the weekend at Roxana High School.

As the district finalist, Lisa now will advance to the Legion's division contest to be held in Benton, Ill., during the week of Feb. 17-21.

Lisa competed in two required categories, prepared oration and extemporaneous speaking.

Her prepared original oration was entitled "We, the people." Her extemporaneous topic was Article III, Section 1, of the U. S. Constitution, "The Judicial Power of the United States."

The full text of the extemporaneous discourse topic is made known to each contestant five minutes prior to time of delivery. All contestants know the topics will be on some phase of the Constitution of the United States.

Valentine party for clients of Specialized Services

Clients of Specialized Services will be entertained at a valentine party at Camp Warren Lewis in Godfrey Friday from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Dinner will be served from 5 to 6 p.m., with ladies from the Concordia Lutheran Church in Cottage Hills assisting. Parents of Collinsville-Quind City clients will furnish dessert. Dancing to the music of a Blue Grass band will follow the dinner.

Crowning of a king and queen from each of the workshops — at Washington and Henry streets, in Alton and 327 W. Main St., Collinsville — will take place from 7:15 to 7:30 p.m. Clients from each workshop have voted on their choices and the selections will be announced at the party.

After the crowning, 250 clients and staff members will view a movie, "George." The movie, the story of a St. Bernard dog, was filmed in the Swiss Alps by Marshall Thompson.

Dan Summers and Linda Mills head the Recreation Committee planning the event.

Local artists exhibit at Kiel

A "Grand Award Winners" art exhibit is being sponsored by the St. Louis Society of Independent Artists through March 28 at the Kiel Auditorium, St. Louis. It was announced today by Mrs. Cleve Whitaker, a Granite City artist and project chairman.

Among the 75 pieces of art being displayed and offered for sale there are works being featured by six area residents, Mrs. Whitaker said. The Independent Artists organization has a current roster of 200 members. The society has been active as a group for the past 45 years, the local resident advised.

Childrens infant is christened

Stephanie Anne Childers, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Childers, 4505 Maryville Road, was christened this week in a ceremony at St. John United Church of Christ. The Rev. Dr. Paul R. Surbey officiated.

Sponsors were Thomas Martin and Miss Vicki Elchenscher of Belleville, an aunt of the baby.

After the service, a buffet dinner was served by Mr. and Mrs. Childers in their home.
